

SUBCOMMITTEE
TO OFFER FOUR SCHOOL PLANS

Proposals For Solution of City's Financial Problem Will Be Presented to Composite Body Soon.

CHARTER CHANGES MADE NECESSARY

Plans Range From Return of Schools To Control by Council to Complete Divorce.

Four plans designed to relieve the financial stress of the Atlanta city government incident to operation and maintenance of the public school system will be considered by the composite committee studying the problem, as an outgrowth of the findings of a special subcommittee of that body it developed Tuesday.

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, of the 11th ward, chairman of the composite group, declared he did not know yet when he would call his committee to meet, but that it probably would be the latter part of this week. He plans to have a recommendation ready for action by city council at its session March 18.

Four Plans Offered.
The four plans which will be offered by the subcommittee in brief follow:

1. Increase of the city taxes from $1.50 per $100 to $2 with the schools getting $1 of the total with which to pay all expenses of the system, this fund to be administered by a board of education from five to seven, elected from the city at large and to serve five-year terms. This plan, evolved by W. W. Gaines, school commissioner from the third ward, contemplates divestment of the school system from all other branches of the municipal government. It does not contemplate retirement by the board of outstanding school bonds.

2. Replacement of the financial operation of the school department under city council with a board of education appointed by the mayor, from each of the 12 wards of the city and with the chairman of the school committee of city council as an ex-officio member. This scheme was proposed by Councilman Nelson Spratt, chairman of the subcommittee, does not contemplate any increase in revenue but would force the school system to be operated on a strict economy basis with funds recommended by the finance committee of council and approved by council.

3. Increase of the city tax to $1.90 or $2 per $100 and give the schools a minimum of 35 per cent of the gross receipts of the city government with no provision for retirement of present bonded indebtedness, which is estimated will aggregate $600,000 next year. The board would be a separate and corporate body under this plan. This proposal was suggested several years ago by John T. Hancock, then president of the board of education and at present commissioner from the eighth ward and chairman of the current expenditures committee of the board.

4. A general increase in city taxes with the schools getting 26 per cent of the city's gross receipts as it does at present.

Relief Given City.
If the first plan were adopted, it was pointed out Tuesday night by Raymond R. Ritchie, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, the city government would be relieved of the following items which it pays in addition to the 26 per cent which is given the schools:

Free textbooks, $125,000; water for the schools, $30,000; pensions, $25,000; nurses and medical service for students, $75,000.

The proposal at first contemplated that in return for the $1 given the school department the department assume the obligation of retiring outstanding bonds which next year will amount to about $600,000, and indications Tuesday were that the subcommittee would insist that this item be included in the agreement if it is offered to council as one of the probable solutions.

B. Graham West, city comptroller, stated he could not say positively whether the city would be better off with a $1 tax rate and the relief of the burden.

TEN ARE QUALIFIED AS COUNTY BOARD
LISTS ARE CLOSED

Ten aspirants were officially qualified Tuesday night to make the race for county commissioner to fill the post left vacant by the death of late Captain George M. Hope and prospects were that one of the warmest campaigns conducted in Fulton county in the several years would result. The election has been set for March 20.

Three new candidates qualified Tuesday, the last day on which those wishing to make the race were able to enter. More than 50,000 residents of Fulton county are entitled to cast ballots.

Those qualifying Tuesday were A. B. King, former chairman of the Atlanta police commission; W. C. Tumlin and William E. Dunn, Jr., secretary of the Southern Metal Trades association.

Ed Inman, Robert F. Pennington, Dr. A. H. Cochran, Colis B. Whitaker, George Longino, Jr., Byron Betts and Victor M. Owenby previously had qualified.

Chattahoochee, Near Atlanta, Leaves Its Banks

Photos by Kenneth Rogers and Bill Mason, Staff Photographers.

PARK PAYMENTS
BY CITY HELD UP

Temporary Restraining Order Ties Up Chose-
wood, Ragdsdale, White Parks, Sisson Property.

Payment of purchase money and interest on newly-acquired city parks was tied up Tuesday by a temporary restraining order obtained against the city and Mayor J. N. Ragdsdale by J. Harry Holmer and J. A. Beall, who allege that contracts for the purchase of Chosewood, Ragdsdale and John A. White parks and the Sisson tract are illegal.

An injunction suit filed in Fulton superior court by the plaintiffs was accompanied by the temporary order signed by Judge Virlyn B. Moore, who made the matter returnable on Saturday. The petition was filed by Walter A. Sims, an attorney.

The plaintiffs allege that purchase of Chosewood park from Rufus C. Bass for a price of $24,700, payable $10,000 cash and the balance in five years at six per cent interest, with the city assuming a debt payable to the Georgia Savings Bank & Trust company, was an act beyond the right of the city under its charter, and that the purchase plan over a period of five years is contrary to the state constitution.

Sisson Purchase.
Similarly, the petition charges, the purchase of the Sisson property on Moreland avenue at a price of $50,000 for the 30 acres, from the Moreland Subdivision, Inc., payment to extend over a period of ten years, is illegal. In regard to the John A. White park purchase, the plaintiffs allege that the contract to buy the property from O. E. Collum for a price of $68,000, payable $6,200 cash and $62,000 over a period of 24 years at four per cent interest, is not only illegal but that the price is exorbitant and that the property is not worth a third of the purchase price. Another part of White park, purchased from Oliver Dolvin for $16,800, with $1,800 as the cash payment, the city to assume $15,000 in loans due February 7, 1935, and a $6,000 loan due October 26, 1930, also is brought under fire by the petition.

Alleging that the price of $410,000 for Ragdsdale park is three times what the property is worth, the plaintiffs allege that the tract is too far from the city for park purposes, and, there being Lakewood park and Candler field in the vicinity, it is not needed for a park. The Ragdsdale park purchase plan of $600,000 cash paid by the city, the city giving $250,000 in five per cent interest notes, the balance over a period of 13 years, was attacked in the petition as illegal.

The plaintiffs point out that the city, in the next few days, intends paying $20,000 for the Ragdsdale park, $24,800 with interest to Collum, $300 interest to Dolvin, $420 interest to Emory university, $6,000 on the Sisson property, and $882 interest on Chosewood park, and ask that the city be enjoined from paying out the money, and that the park purchase contracts in question be declared null and void.

City Would Lose $53,000.
If the injunction proceedings are sustained by the court, Atlanta stands to lose $53,000 and Fulton county an additional $20,000, it was disclosed by figures of the city and county governments.

Improvements and purchase price money expended on the White park totals $28,000, the balance amount the city would lose. Of this figure $8,000 was spent on the purchase price. Chosewood park has cost a total of $15,000, thus far $12,500 of the amount having been expended on the purchase cost, which was $27,200.

Thus far the city has paid out nothing on the Sisson or the Ragdsdale park property, but Fulton county has paid $20,000 on the Ragdsdale strip.

An addition to the $20,000 which Fulton county has spent on the Parkerson tract, it has furnished county land amounting to several thousand dollars on the tracts.

HOOVER TACKLES
NEW JOB EAGERLY

New President Puts in Day of Labor Despite
Thousands of Callers;
To Confide in Press.

BY JAMES I. WEST.
Associated Press Staff Writer.
Washington, March 5.—(AP)—This first day in the presidency was a mighty busy one for Herbert Hoover, and from all appearances, a mighty happy one.

His day's activities extended all the way from a decision of major policy, that of non-interference with present regulations regarding the shipment of arms into Mexico to reminiscences of his boyhood days in West Branch, Iowa, with his one-time school teacher, Mrs. Mollie Carran, who was his luncheon guest at the white house.

Meeting the newspaper correspondents at noon in his first press conference, as president, he made jocular comments as the nearly 300 new writers streamed into his office, jangling from wall to wall and overflowing around his desk.

The president, wearing a suit of blue, his favorite color, but with a single-breasted coat, told the correspondents he not only wanted to continue the usual contacts with them, but wished to devise methods by which these could be improved to the mutual benefit of the press and himself.

Reaching his office at 8:55 a. m., ahead of most of his staff, and after a simple breakfast with his family, Mr. Hoover had an early conference with Secretary Kellogg on the new revolutionary movement in Mexico.

After a second conference later it was announced that there would be no change in the policy on arms shipments.

Soon after that the army of visitors began to march through the executive offices. A delegation from his own state of California came first, bearing a large state flag and standard and an inkwell with a small bear made of California gold.

After a delegation of Floridians had filed through the president's office, Mr. Hoover got his first real taste of the federal government. He received several of the presidential electors called, after shaking hands with each, the chief executive walked to the door of the executive office to pose with this group.

As 2:44 p.m., by actual count, filed past his desk during the day, Mr. Hoover got his first real taste of presidential handshaking, but he apparently enjoyed it, as it was his first personal contact with the people since the days of his campaign.

After luncheon the chief executive posed with a dozen Union veterans of the war between the states, who had formed a guard of honor at his inaugural ceremonies yesterday; received the national committeemen and other guests and finally closed his desk late in the day, a very tired, but very happy man.

Fighting Is Begun
As Mexican Troops
Move on Vera Cruz

Government Claims Victory
at Orizaba; Rebels Capture City of Monte-re and Garrison.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
The first blood has been shed in the Mexican revolution but both federal and insurgent troops yesterday still were more intent on mobilization and consolidation of positions than upon testing their strength in armed combat.

The rebels claimed a signal victory at Monterey with hundreds of federal and war materials captured and Federal General Lurriga killed. Another version gave the number of federal defenders as 40. Reports favorable to the rebel cause were received of armed clashes near Mazatlan, Sinaloa; Tepic, Coahuila; and Cananea, Sonora. Unconfirmed reports at Tampico, Mexico, were that the rebels also had captured Chihuahua City.

Battles in South.
The federal attack first at the menace nearest the capital. It was announced that the entire garrison of Orizaba, state of Vera Cruz, had surrendered to their advance from Mexico City. Tampico loyalists laid down an embargo against Vera Cruz to cut the rebels off in their rear. Vera Cruz, however, stated that Mexican naval vessels stationed there had declared for the rebel cause.

Food hoarding and profiteering had begun in Mexico City but the capital was otherwise reported as normal. Hundreds of American tourists were said to be in no danger although means of leaving the country were lacking. A suggestion that a special train under escort be used for their removal was under consideration at the United States embassy.

Mexico City newspapers said a special session of congress might be called to give President Emilio Portes Gil extraordinary financial and military powers to meet the crisis. The city and its leaders still were confident that the rebellion would be put down.

The United States continued its hands-off policy and Washington dispatches said President Hoover saw no reason to reverse the policy under which shipments of arms have been permitted under license to the Mexican government the last five years.

FEDERALS EXPECT
EASY VICTORY.

Mexico City, March 5.—(AP)—The federal government tonight announced its first important successes. The entire rebel garrison of Orizaba, a regiment numbering about 500 men, was reported to have surrendered to the advancing loyal troops.

From this communiqué it would appear tonight that the eastern rebels are confined largely to the coastal

COOLIDGE'S HAVE QUIET ARRIVAL

Committee of 17 Citizens
Greet President and Mrs.
Coolidge on Arrival at Home.

Northampton, Mass., March 5.—(United News).—Calvin Coolidge, who yesterday stepped out of the presidency of the United States today stepped into the life of a private citizen of Northampton with only little more ado than might mark the return of the mayor from a trip to Europe.

Promptly at 8:30 a. m. he received a committee of 17 citizens of Northampton. He shook hands with each but he hardly gave time for more than a few words of the welcoming speech.

Then with Mrs. Coolidge and with an escort car in which rode Frank Stearns, his friend and adviser, and Major James F. Coupland, his personal physician, he drove through Northampton to his $40 a month duplex house in Massachusetts street.

Stays in House.
Arriving home the Coolidges disappeared into their modest residence and Mr. Coolidge did not come out again all day.

A policeman stood guard over the house where the ex-president will live. A newspaperman during the day went to the door and asked to see Mr. Coolidge.

"The king is dead," said the man who formerly was the white house spokesman in Washington, D. C. "He does not intend to return to shake his shroud in the face of the new ruler."

That ended the conversation.

A little later Richard Sears, a photographer, long an acquaintance of Mr. Coolidge, went to the door and rang the bell. Mr. Coolidge himself answered the call.

"Hello, Dick," he said, shaking hands with the photographer. The request for permission to take a picture was granted.

This afternoon Mrs. Coolidge, accompanied by Mrs. R. B. Hill, a friend of her school days, went to the Coolidge Dickinson hospital and visited Mrs. Coolidge's mother, Mrs. Lemira Kemel, who has been ill at the hospital for some weeks.

The Coolidges had dinner alone in their home tonight.

HEALTH OF TURKISH RULER EXCELLENT
DECLARES REPORT

Constantinople, March 5.—(AP)—Rumors frequently circulated regarding the health of President Mustafa Kemal were met with the first official direct response today in a speech by Premier Ismet Pasha in the national assembly.

"The youth and health of the Ghazi," said the premier, "will permit him to serve the country for many years more."

GEORGIA RAVAGED
ANEW AS RAINS
INCREASE FLOODS

Trains Forced to Wide
Detours or Forced Back
Altogether; Dams Give Before Waters.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Torrential rains which fell over Georgia from Sunday night until Tuesday intensified conditions in sections already inconvenienced by last week's downpour.

Newton, county seat of Baker county, and situated on the Flint river in southwest Georgia, was cut off from highway communication when water flowed over the road leading to Camilla. The larger number of the 400 residents had taken refuge in the hospitable homes of the neighboring county seat of Camilla previous to the severing of this remaining artery of travel.

For the second time in less than a week water was reported in the business section of Montezuma, the county seat of Macon county.

Highway Washed Out.
A downpour at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning washed away repairs to the break in the Macon-Perry highway at the Echacoon creek bridge. This road was washed out last week a distance of 400 feet, interfering with the main travel highway from Atlanta to Florida.

Part of a dirt fill of a trestle over the Dixie highway was washed away by this cloudburst. The downpour was followed by a heavy wind and it was not indicated last night when the highway could be repaired and opened again for travel.

The only detour highway leading to the south from Macon was carried away when the Houston lake dam broke. This structure, which was 6 miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide, held back the waters of that lake. The break carried the water southward through Mowbray creek to the Oconee river. The avalanche took with it Thorpe's mill dam, a smaller lake. The two bodies of water engulfed the Georgia Southern railway division of the Southern railway, the water being higher over the railroad tracks and trestle and backed up toward the big cement plant at Clinchfield. Clinchfield, five miles distant, the plant officials stated, however, that it was in no danger.

The highway alongside of Houston lake was built on the concrete dam.

Seek New Detour.
Efforts to open another detour were being made by highway officials, but they were confronted with the highest water in years.

The Flint river at Albany measured 31.7 feet Tuesday afternoon, which was a drop of one-tenth since this morning. Although this may have been caused by the closing of the gates of the power dam at the town of Albany, it indicated the passage of the flood crest.

The Central of Georgia passenger train to Atlanta was turned back at Albany yesterday morning on account of a washout at Ogeechee and was returned to Savannah. Officials announced that the road was having more trouble from high water than at any time since the floods of January, 1925. The Ogeechee river was rising.

Savannah reported northwest storm signals flying and a wind velocity of 42 miles, but with a bright sun shining.

The Savannah river at Augusta was rising and with the water flowing over exposed places in North Augusta, across the river in South Carolina.

Americus Deluged.
Americus was deluged with two inches of rainfall, accompanied by a wind which blew down awnings and telegraph poles. The Sumter county seat was cut off over the highways from Atlanta, Columbus and Macon unless one would take detours of from 150 to 300 miles.

North and southbound trains over the Central of Georgia railroad, which was affected by the rain, were expected to be passing again through Americus today.

Highway route No. 3, Americus to Atlanta, was closed with about ten washouts. Route No. 26 to Columbus had a washout near Ellick mill.

The Flint river at Americus was at a standstill—neither rising nor falling.

MILLER PAROLED
TAKEN BY SARGENT
AS LAST ACTION

Washington, March 5.—(AP)—Attorney General Sargent today approved the parole of Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, effective May 7.

Miller was convicted in New York, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the return of property seized from aliens. He was tried with former Attorney General Daugherty, who was acquitted.

Mr. Sargent's action was possibly the last act of his administration of the department, the announcement coming within an hour of the time set for William D. Mitchell to take the oath of office as attorney general.

W. R. Slate Dies at Residence While Mrs. Slate Succumbs After Reaching Grady.

CRIES OF CHILDREN
TELL OF TRAGEDY.

W. O. Slate Expresses Belief Brother and Wife Took Poison Dose as Result of Mistake.

W. R. Slate, a prominent Atlanta lawyer, and his wife died late Tuesday night as the result of a dose of poison, the end of the husband coming almost instantly while Mrs. Slate succumbed a few minutes after reaching Grady hospital. Relatives expressed the opinion that the poison had been taken by mistake in the belief that it was a remedy for indigestion with which the couple had suffered.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Slate were found in the bedroom of their home at 11 o'clock by George W. Slate, a brother, who lives upstairs. He was attracted to the scene by hearing the cries of the two small children of the couple and that when he rushed downstairs he found his brother dead and his sister-in-law dying.

Doctor Is Summoned.
The family physician immediately was summoned and he pronounced the man dead and ordered an ambulance sent for Mrs. Slate, who expired about 11:30 o'clock before doctors could treat her at the hospital.

Mr. Slate was a member of the law firm of W. O. and W. R. Slate, with offices in the Fourth National Bank building. He was a well known member of the bar.

W. O. Slate said that neither his brother nor his wife appeared to be worried or depressed about anything and that so far as he knew their relations had been happy. He said that Mrs. Slate had called her husband at the office about 6 o'clock, apparently in the best of spirits, and had told him to "hurry home for dinner."

Finds Box of Chemicals.
The searchers found a box of chemicals in powder form in the room where Mr. and Mrs. Slate were lying and he advanced the theory that the dose was taken by mistake for an indigestion remedy since both had been afflicted with this ailment for some time. The powder, if taken in sufficient quantities would act as a poison, according to Grady doctors, and the small amount left in the bottle indicated that such a dose had been taken by the two victims.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Slate were 34 years old.

They leave two children, W. R. Slate, Jr., seven years old, and Beverly Slate, four years old.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Slate were carried to the undertaking establishment of H. M. Patterson & Son.

CONGRESS PREPARING FOR SPECIAL SESSION

Senate Party Organization in Shape for Farm Relief and Tariff Parley.

Washington, March 5.—(P)—The senate party organization was set in shape today for the special farm relief and tariff session and an unofficial republican committee completed work along that line for the house.

The senate republicans chose James E. Watson, of Indiana, as their leader, succeeding Vice President Curtis. The democrats reelected Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, candidate for vice president in the last election, to be the minority leader.

The republicans also named the veteran Wesley L. Jones, of Washington, as assistant leader and Simon D. Fess, of Ohio, as whip, while the democrats selected Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, as the assistant minority leader and Morris Sheppard, of Texas, as the whip.

Senator Black, of Alabama, was chosen secretary of the democratic caucus and Senator Pittman, of Nevada, as the democratic candidate for president pro tem. This latter nomination, however, was purely honorary as the president pro tem of the senate, including Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, as president pro tem, will continue in the coming session.

In the house the republican committee on committees reelected Albert H. Vestal, of Indiana, as the whip. The republican majority before adjournment had reelected Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, as speaker and John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, as floor leader, but left the selection of a whip to the committee on committees.

The republicans also reduced the democratic representation on the major committees from 8 to 7.

The ways and means and agriculture committees have been authorized to sit during the adjournment period until the special session in April to prepare the tariff and farm bills. Republican subcommittees of the former already are at work formulating rate changes and plans have been made for these groups to meet in joint session once a week to go over the progress made.

Brenau Trustees Decide To Form Two Institutions

Gainesville, Ga., March 5.—(P)—Separation of Brenau College-Conservatory from Brenau college proper and an increase of $250,000 in the equipment of the college were assured today as a result of acceptance by the Brenau board of trustees of a proposal by Dr. H. J. Pearce, president of the institution. The plan also involved construction of a new building.

A second board of trustees, according to the proposal, will be organized for operation of the college-conservatory as a separate institution. A portion of the grounds would also be decided to the new institution, the college board having only a contingent interest in the property to be transferred. The college-conservatory would assume the indebtedness of the college proper and the latter would receive $150,000 of six per cent bonds as consideration for the transfer of title.

The endowment of Brenau college would be increased from $355,000 to $515,000 as the effect of the transaction and would have no indebtedness beyond $75,000, which was assumed by the college when the Dixie-Hunt hotel was given the college by Mrs. Aurora Hunt.

The conservatory will be affiliated with the college. It will give all courses in music, art and dramatic art and conduct a preparatory school for girls.

Dr. Pearce has been authorized to begin construction of an academic building on the portion reserved for the college, to provide classrooms and offices for teachers.

Suit for $25,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received on December 6 in a street car crash at Whitehall and Hunter streets was filed Tuesday in city court of Atlanta by Mrs. L. Edwards against the Georgia Power company. Mr. Edwards filed a companion suit for $10,000 for loss of his wife's services. The plaintiffs allege that the impact of the collision hurled Mrs. Edwards from her seat and caused severe injuries. The petitions were filed by George and John L. Westmoreland as attorneys.

Warrants Issued After Poison Liquor Inquest For Two Men and Wives

Couples Ordered Held by Coroner After Testimony Indicates Source of Liquor.

Peoria, Ill., March 5.—(P)—Two men and two women were named in murder warrants issued today as a result of testimony in an inquest into the deaths of five other victims.

The latest victim was Adam Zilch, of Peoria, who died suddenly today in his home.

In Galesburg, Ill., several miles west of here, the death of Robert Calwell, a railroad engineer, also was reported today, apparently another victim of the bad liquor.

Authorities are investigating reports that the deaths of three other persons since Sunday were caused by poisonous liquor. Two others, a man and woman, were said to have been blinded and are under a physician's care.

One name was stricken from the list of Peoria victims when Coroner Elliott announced his autopsy disclosed Edward Baldwin had died from a cerebral hemorrhage instead of poisoning.

The poison deaths were first reported Saturday when three persons died. Four more passed away Sunday and seven yesterday.

It was understood federal authorities were taking a hand in the investigations.

The source of the poisoned liquor has not been officially determined. Mansfield was supposed to have told the state's attorney he imported a 50-gallon shipment of alcohol from Chicago. Another report said a load of industrial alcohol belonging to a Peoria firm had recently been hijacked, authorities thinking this might have been improperly redistilled and distributed.

A chemical analysis of some of the fluid taken from vital organs of several of the victims disclosed that the liquor contained from 10 to 15 percent wood alcohol, according to Professor George Ashman, of Bradley institute, Peoria, who made the analysis for the coroner. He said it appeared that the liquor was industrial alcohol that had been redistilled poorly.

More Inquests.

Meanwhile, the coroner was proceeding with his investigations and said he would open two more inquests tomorrow.

Dr. Abram Cory, of Kingston, N. C., who is speaker at the union noon meetings at the Baptist Tabernacle this week, Tuesday at 11 o'clock addressed a meeting of students at the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Today he will speak at the Baptist Tabernacle at 12:15 o'clock. The messages that have been delivered to date by Dr. Cory have been hailed by local religious leaders as powerful and illuminating.

Tuesday, Dr. Cory spoke on "Testing," with particular reference to the tests a Christian might apply to himself. He referred to a statement made by Sir Philip Gibbs to the effect that today is a day and a time of testing where nearly everything must stand the acid of reason.

Dr. Cory Tuesday night delivered another of his four messages being delivered at the First Christian church. He will speak tonight and Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock at the church, of which Rev. C. R. Stauffer is the minister. Mrs. Robert Cunningham, choir director and organist, is furnishing a program of special music for these meetings.

DUNN ANNOUNCES PLATFORM IN RACE FOR COUNTY BOARD

William E. Dunn, secretary of the Southern Metal Trades association, Tuesday issued the following statement on formally entering the race for the county commission:

To the voters of Fulton county: This is to announce my candidacy for the office of commissioner of Fulton county, and to say that I will appreciate the vote, support and influence of all taxpayers and voters who believe in and desire a sane, conservative business administration of the affairs of the county. If elected, I shall endeavor to cast my activities and influence in such direction in a common "horse-sense" manner at all times.

I own no outlying acreage which would be enhanced by construction of roads to or along its borders, and feel that roads should be paved where needed and of service to the people, and not for selfish, personal aggrandizement.

GEORGIA HIGH SCHOOLS PICK ORATORY CHAMPS

Preparing for District Contests Which Are Set for Saturday, March 23.

High schools all over Georgia are busy this week selecting their champion orators, whom are to represent them in the district high school oratory tests to be held at central points in the twelve congressional districts of the state on Saturday, March 23, according to announcement by Dr. J. S. Stewart, of the University of Georgia at Athens, contest manager for the state.

This oratory contest, a part of the national and international contests for 1929, is sponsored in Georgia by The Constitution. Prizes of $15 each will be given by this paper to each of the winners in the twelve district contests.

The twelve winners will, on April 26, compete at the state capital for the state championship and the right to represent Georgia in the zone finals, which, for the southern zone, are to be held at New Orleans early in May. The winner of the zone contest will be given a free tour of South America and will compete in the national finals at Washington.

Subjects for the orations must deal with some phase of the federal constitution and must not take more than 10 minutes in delivery. They must be the original work of the contestants and no one can enter the contest who is not a bona fide high school undergraduate and under 19 years of age on February 1 last.

Full details as to the contest may be secured by writing to Dr. Stewart, the contest manager, at Athens. Superintendent T. O. Cheney, of Tech High school, is chairman for the fifth district.

SALESMAN ROBBED AND TIED TO TREE FOR ENTIRE NIGHT

Robbed of $40 and a sample case by three men who first assisted him in clearing a clogged gas line in his car, Clyde Durham, salesman of 111 Forsyth, S. W., early Tuesday morning was found tied to a tree on Chattahoochee avenue, in an exhausted condition. An employee of the Louisville & Nashville railroad shops took him to the shops and called county police.

Durham's car, abandoned by the bandits after he was robbed, was found on Chattahoochee avenue about a mile from where Durham was roped to the tree, County Policeman Cal Cates reported.

Durham's shouts for help through the night went unheard until 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, when the passing workman heard his cries and went to his assistance. The capture and robbery occurred about 8 o'clock Monday night, Durham said.

NEW TRIAL PLEAS IN BYRD CASE SET FOR APRIL FIRST

Waycross, Ga., March 5.—(P)—Solicitor General A. B. Spence announced today that motions for new trials of Mrs. Agnes Byrd and F. T. Brady will be heard by Judge Mark Dickson, in Douglas, April 1. Both a under life sentence for the slaying of Ira Byrd, husband of the woman defendant.

Man--You Can't Hide Your Weakness

YOUR face is an advertisement of the richness or of the poverty of the blood which nourishes your system. With the aid of a mirror you can easily read your fortune or your misfortune, your strength or your weakness, your health or your sickness.

If your mirror shows you a pale or sallow skin, sunken cheeks, eyes that are dull and listless, the furrows of care and the expression of premature age, you may be sure that your entire system, as well as your face, is starving for the lack of rich, life-giving blood.

Your mirror also will tell you when and why to commence the use of Virogen, the blood-builder, and when to discontinue its use. Rich, red blood will show itself in every feature of your complexion and facial expression as well as in renewed strength, endurance and physical fitness. The symptoms of health are the symptoms of rich blood. They can neither be mistaken nor simulated. It is so with the effects of Virogen. They are quickly manifested by improvement in appearance as well as by renewed strength and general health.

Thousands of users, in unsolicited letters, testify that almost immediately the appetite picks up, the indigestion is improved, sallowness and pimples disappear, sparkle returns to the eyes and strength and vitality take the place of weakness, lassitude and frailty.

FOR WOMEN, TOO!

If you are thin, weak, dull-eyed, discouraged, fearful—take VIROGEN at once! Be bright, cheerful, buoyant in perfect health. VIROGEN works almost like magic in strengthening and revitalizing the entire system, clearing the complexion, restoring the rounded symmetry of the body, in building STRENGTH and VITALITY!

"An O. O. but look and felt like 90 two months ago. I was shaky, weak, no vitality, thin and hopeless. Medicine didn't help. An Atlanta man suggested Virogen. After taking three packages I was a well man, but I kept on with two more. Honestly, I feel like a kid now and my wife is as tickled as I am."—S. M. Brooks.

Virogen in highly concentrated tablet form may be obtained in Atlanta at Jacobs' and all good drug stores. By mail $1 a box. Guardian Health Products Co., Dept. 18, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Remove Film

Teeth regain dazzling whiteness

New special film-removing dentifrice whitens teeth amazingly when ordinary methods fail.

FILM is the cause of dull, discolored teeth as well as the serious tooth and gum disorders. Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film. It absorbs stains from food and smoking and turns white teeth dull. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Ordinary brushing fails to remove film successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

First, Pepsodent cures film, then removes it in gentle safety to enamel. No other way will make teeth as sparkling white. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, or ask your druggist for full-size tube.

GEORGIA G.O.P. CONTEST P. TO COMMITTEEMEN

lection of National Representative to be Settled by Executive Body.

Washington, March 5.—(By Staff Correspondent.)—Incident to the meeting here today of the republican national committee, authority was given to the organization's executive committee to settle the contest coming from Georgia over the election of national committeeman for the state. The executive committee will take up the dispute at a meeting scheduled for Wednesday.

tion in Georgia are here in full force and are keeping an interested eye on the case. Accompanied by counsel and armed with credentials tending to show that he was regularly elected to the post of the state committee, G. F. Flanders, of Savannah, has been on the scene for more than a fortnight conferring with members of the national committee preparatory to the meeting today.

Picket on Hand.
On the other hand, Roscoe Pickett, of Jasper, former state chairman, is on hand and is said to be prepared to urge the selection of Joe Watson, state negro leader, or some one else. Pickett is said to be planning to challenge the legality of the meeting in Atlanta of the state committee which selected Flanders as national committeeman-elect to succeed former National Committeeman Ben Davis, Atlanta negro, whose reelection failed at the Kansas City national convention because of a deadlock in the Georgia delegation.

In the absence of any definite word from officials of the national committee, it seems safe to say tonight that if Flanders is not confirmed action on the case will be deferred, possibly until the next national convention in 1932.

Failure of the national organization to elect a national committeeman would probably result in the establishment of some elaborate patronage machinery for recommendations of applicants for federal offices in the state.

Flanders will be represented before the committee by J. W. Arnold, attorney, of Athens.

OIL, TIRE DEALERS GUESTS OF PAN-AM AT BANQUET HERE

The Pan-American Petroleum corporation Tuesday night was host to over 50 Atlanta gasoline and tire dealers at a banquet at the Atlanta Athletic club, at which prominent officials of the company were speakers. These included James McCrory, assistant general sales manager; George Norman, head of the lubricating oil department; R. S. Gibbs, Georgia division manager, and W. H. Glazebrook, assistant Georgia division manager.

The speakers told of the scope of their company, the nature of its products and the extent of its distribution. They expressed pleasure at playing host to the gas dealers, who represented all the oil companies operating here, and to their guests in the tire business. G. H. Allen, Atlanta manager for Pan-Am, acted as toastmaster at the banquet.

The social event brought to an end a Pan-American sales meeting with attendance from all parts of north Georgia, which was held during the day at the Ansley hotel. Mr. McCrory, Mr. Norman, Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Glazebrook were speakers at this gathering.

STATE WILL REOPEN GAS TAX LITIGATION

Effort To Be Made Force Cities and Counties To Pay Levy.

Attorney General George M. Napier will begin proceedings at once to reopen litigation involving the payment of gasoline taxes by Georgia counties and cities, this action being taken at the suggestion of representatives of leading oil companies engaged in business in Georgia. This was announced at the capitol Tuesday. This case is regarded as a test case and was decided by the Fulton superior court on January 28, 1928, the decision being against the state of Georgia.

The representatives of the oil companies appeared before Governor L. G. Hardman recently and told the governor that there is grave danger that the oil company executives would decline to allow local representatives to collect the gasoline tax after the next session of the legislature is held. If the legislature, at the approaching session, attempts to allocate funds for the state highway department it is virtually certain that the oil company executives will instruct local representatives in Georgia to decline to collect the tax, it was learned.

The Fulton superior court decision in the case of the four-cent gasoline tax from counties and cities which purchase supplies of gasoline for use in automobiles operated by these counties and cities. The gasoline company representatives do not want any part of the gasoline tax money allocated to counties when the counties, under the ruling of the superior court of Fulton county, are not required to pay the four cents tax on gasoline purchased by them. It was learned from an official source.

The committee of oil company representatives did not make any threat of any kind of action as to the allocation of the funds, but went on record before the governor as opposing the use of any money collected in gasoline tax for any purpose other than for the construction of roads.

The companies represented on the committee were the Wolford Oil company, Standard Oil company, Pan-American Oil company, Gulf Refining company, the Texas company and the Sinclair Oil company.

The case decided by the Fulton superior court against the state involves the counties of Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb, Troup, Jackson, Sumter, Muscogee, Richmond and Thomas and the cities of Atlanta and Columbus. It will be necessary for the case to be reopened before it can be appealed to the supreme court.

COCHRAN DISCUSSES COMMISSION RACE

To the Voters of Fulton County:
In announcing my candidacy for the position on the county board made vacant by the death of Hon. George M. Hope, I did so at the urgent request of a number of my friends who supported me in my first race and who believe I am capable of filling the position, and who also think I am the logical man to run for this place.

In making this race I wish to state to the public that I am not aligned with any clique or combinations, if such exists in county politics. I have no subdivisions to develop, no personal interests or private plans to work out for my benefit alone. I am free from political obligations and will not be handicapped by promises to anybody. I am free to serve any section with the same faithfulness and honest consideration that I would for my immediate section of West End.

In my former race I learned of the inadequate accommodations in the public schools and of the meager salaries paid the teachers of Fulton county. It shall be my chief aim as county commissioner to improve these conditions and to increase the salaries of the teachers to at least a living wage.

I believe in all men and women everywhere receiving a living wage and having the working conditions as pleasant as possible.

I am in this race to the finish. I am not being run by any clique or faction, and will be free to serve all the people perfectly fair. If elected, I promise honest and faithful service to every section and every interest of Fulton county.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic

Mexicali, Baja California, Mexico, March 5.—(Special.)—General Abelardo Rodriguez, governor of the northern district of Baja California, returned here tonight and announced that he had taken possession today of San Luis Sonora, in the name of the federal government. The town was taken without bloodshed, he reported.

TECH BOY WINS CARNEGIE AWARD

ing—and it was estimated that it was 12 inches higher at Montezuma.

The great volume of water which the state received in 24 hours was indicated in the rainfall at Macon of 4.10, Augusta 2.90, West Point 4.00, Columbus 3.80, Montezuma 2.15, Albany 1.52, Tallahassee 5.20.

Atlanta got 3.85 inches in 36 hours. Several of the outlying roads of Fulton county were reported inundated and impassable Tuesday morning, owing to swollen creeks.

Charles G. Gramling, in charge of the Atlanta pumping station at Bolton, said the Chattahoochee river, from which the city's water supply is drawn, rose to 25.5 feet at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and then began to recede. The levee at the waterworks is 35 feet high and Mr. Gramling said there was no danger at present.

For cold weather was forecast for today by the weather bureau. The forecaster thought the high wind would continue throughout the night, but that Wednesday would be calm and warmer in the afternoon.

The barometer fell during the day and shipping along the Atlantic seaboard had been warned. The weather chief thought that the high winds would help to dry up the streets.

Warnings that the rivers would rise and stay up for a long time were issued by the weather bureau.

CHICAGO POLICE NAME THREE IN MASSACRE

Chicago, March 5.—(United News.)—Convicted they have found a solution of the Morrell gang massacre, police named three men today as actual participants in the assassination of seven "Bugs" Moran henchmen here February 14.

The gangsters named as executioners by police were Joseph Loloro, brother of Pasquino Loloro, slain mafia chieftain and one time follower of Tony Lombardo, murdered head of the Unione Siciliana; Frederick R. Burke, fugitive and bank bandit, and James Ray, of St. Louis.

According to Deputy Police Commissioner John Siegel, Ray and Burke were the men who were police uniforms while they slaughtered the Morrells with machine guns. However, Siegel said, Jack McGurn, arrested in a fashionable hotel with his "blonde alibi," Louise Rolfe, cabaret entertainer, and charged with being a "palooka" man in the execution, remained silent in his county jail cell.

He refused to discuss the case with newspaper men except to say that he was getting a "bum rap." However, investigators believe McGurn arranged to have the Moran gang executed and that he paid the slayers $10,000 each.

The theory linking Loloro with the wholesale murders was voiced by attorneys of the state's attorney's office today who stated that they had information concerning the existence of a feud between the Loloro and Moran factions. They also stated that Pasquino Loloro was slain by Moran gunmen after a dispute over "choice concessions" and that Joseph Loloro, his brother, had sworn to avenge the death with complete annihilation of the Moran gang. Burke and Ray, police believe, were merely paid assassins.

SOUTH CAROLINA ROAD BONDS BILL IS IN CONFERENCE

Columbia, S. C., March 5.—(Special.)—The differences between the two branches of the South Carolina general assembly in the $75,000,000 highway bill are now being ironed out in free conference. Both legislative bodies are agreeing on the principal amount. The chief difficulty confronting the conference is whether the annual expenditure under the bill will be $20,000,000 as the measure passed the senate, or $15,000,000 as provided in the house amendment.

In the meantime there is on the senate calendar another highway bill, already passed by the house and given two readings in the senate, which is practically a duplicate of the bill first passed by the upper body in the assembly. This situation came about by reason of the fact that duplicate bills were introduced in both houses simultaneously.

First, passing their measure on to the house. The senate bill, receiving consideration first by the house, is now in free conference. The original house bill, therefore, is now on the senate calendar.

With this situation existing, and Governor John G. Richards outspoken in favor of the road building program, South Carolina is patiently marking time, virtually assured that within the present week there will probably be enacted a law which assures the completion of a hard surface highway system, statewide in scope, and embracing something over 2,000 miles of paved roads.

permanent congressional committee calling an extraordinary session of congress to consider the advisability of extending to President Porfirio Gil extraordinary powers in the treasury and war departments to aid him in putting down the rebellion.

Tempeco was quiet. Workmen who are members of the "border socialist party" paraded as a manifestation of loyalty to government and expressed readiness to volunteer for service against the rebels if needed.

Transportation Demoralized.
Messages from the city of Panama, state of Hidalgo, said miners united and farmers leagues met and voted adhesion to the government.

Predictions of what may happen are of course largely speculative, but it may be said that high non-Mexican observers express confidence that the rebellion will ultimately be defeated. The passenger train which left here last night for Laredo returned today. It did not go even as far as San Luis Potosi, although the line is reported open to that city.

ing—and it was estimated that it was 12 inches higher at Montezuma.

The great volume of water which the state received in 24 hours was indicated in the rainfall at Macon of 4.10, Augusta 2.90, West Point 4.00, Columbus 3.80, Montezuma 2.15, Albany 1.52, Tallahassee 5.20.

Atlanta got 3.85 inches in 36 hours. Several of the outlying roads of Fulton county were reported inundated and impassable Tuesday morning, owing to swollen creeks.

Charles G. Gramling, in charge of the Atlanta pumping station at Bolton, said the Chattahoochee river, from which the city's water supply is drawn, rose to 25.5 feet at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and then began to recede. The levee at the waterworks is 35 feet high and Mr. Gramling said there was no danger at present.

For cold weather was forecast for today by the weather bureau. The forecaster thought the high wind would continue throughout the night, but that Wednesday would be calm and warmer in the afternoon.

The barometer fell during the day and shipping along the Atlantic seaboard had been warned. The weather chief thought that the high winds would help to dry up the streets.

Warnings that the rivers would rise and stay up for a long time were issued by the weather bureau.

MONTEZUMA ISOLATED IN HOURS

Montezuma, Ga., March 5.—(Special.)—At noon today Montezuma was able to communicate with the outside world by wire for the first time in 18 hours, and for the same period no southbound trains could reach here due to washouts on the Central of Georgia and A. B. & C. railroads. The Central of Georgia train which was due at 5:30 yesterday from Macon was held at Byron all night, due to a washout at that point, and reached Montezuma at 10:30 this morning.

A four-inch rain yesterday at Rupert, 20 miles above here, caused a 30-foot washout on the A. B. & C. railroad at Rupert, and two dams, Garrett and Harmon, on Whitewater creek, broke. The Whitewater Power company, which is situated on the same stream, 8 miles from Montezuma, and which furnishes electric current to Montezuma, Oglethorpe and neighboring towns, is threatened, and crews worked all night placing thousands of sandbags and taking other precautions in an effort to resist the waters rushing down on it.

The rainfall in the northern part of the county yesterday and last night was almost unprecedented, and Flint river is again rising. Before yesterday's rains it had fallen from the maximum 26.3 feet to 20 feet, but it rose 10 inches last night and is expected to reach 24 feet by Wednesday morning.

Q. E. Worthington, county superintendent of roads, reports that washouts on the roads of the county—three on Horse creek, closing all the roads from Macon county to Taylor county; two on Hogeraw creek leading to Dooly county, two on White-water creek and one between Garden Valley and Ideal.

NEWTON ALMOST ISOLATED

Newton, Ga., March 5.—(Special.)—Tumultuous flood water of Flint river flowed through the streets of this little town tonight, ranging from one to five feet deep in the business district and most of the residential section, with the Albany weather observer predicting a steady rise here for the next 24 hours.

Finding its way around the slight bluff on which Newton stands, the water first had encircled the town and then steadily closed in from the off-river side until late today it was within a few feet of the parent stream in the river's gorge.

One road, that to Camilla, still was open as an avenue of egress and free use was being made of that by those citizens whose houses still were threatened with isolation in the water. Some were moving household effects away from their homes by boat and either loading them in trucks to be taken to Camilla or storing them in the court-house, the corridors and offices of which resembled a furniture warehouse.

At the few business houses whose doors were opened this evening, the bursting of the dam today forced the storing of stocks for safe-keeping through a predicted siege of high water and the principal traffic on the streets was by boat.

TWO RAILROADS VIRTUALLY TIED UP

Macon, Ga., March 5.—(Special.)—Two railroads were partially tied up here today because of the flood of the Southern Railway, which had been tied up by last week's flood, was reopened, the closing of the Georgia Southern and Florida division, and trains over that road were being detained over the Macon-Brunswick division of the Southern to Helena and thence to Cordele over the tracks of the Seaboard Air Line railway.

The southwestern division of the Central of Georgia train had operated no trains between Montgomery and Macon, due to two bad washouts, one a mile west of Union Springs, Ala., and another 25 miles west of that city. Train service is being maintained between north and south, however, on the Southern and Central of Georgia railroads.

Rainfall for the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. measured 4.10 inches. Milledgeville reported 34.7 feet this morning; Hawkinsville 30.2 feet; Abbeville 19.1 feet; Dublin 25.2 feet; and Doctortown 9.2 feet.

The Savannah division of the Central of Georgia train is cut by high water between Tonnelle and Dover, Ga. No through train service has been established between the two cities today.

Tonight the Atlanta train, bound for Savannah, will be routed through Macon to Albany, Ga., where it will be turned over to the Atlantic Coast Line railway for delivery in Savannah by way of Waycross. The Savannah to Atlanta train will use the same route.

TAYLOR COUNTY LOSES ALL BRIDGES

Butler, Ga., March 5.—(Special.)—The finishing touches in the destruction of every important bridge and the crumbling of dams across streams at every mile site in Taylor county were added Monday by a downpour of rain amounting to about six inches in 12 hours.

The damage to bridges and roads in Taylor county is estimated at forty to fifty thousand dollars being the greatest in the history of the county. Monday's downpour was preceded by a week of heavy rains the bridges and dams could not therefore withstand the strain all giving way as so much chaff in a wind storm.

They are all gone, large as well as small ones, numbering twenty-five or more.

Traffic over all public roads, as well as highways, is completely cut off from this point, except in one direction, west to Columbus and that by mule tracks to Howard, 10 miles west of this place. Travel before state highway number three north and south through Butler and Taylor county will be impossible for probably several days, due to the fact that all bridges and all culverts along this route through the county were either blown out or washed away.

COLDER WEATHER TO FOLLOW STORMS.

By the Associated Press.
Fair and colder weather generally was promised for the south Wednesday following two days of heavy precipitation in some sections which sent creeks and rivers to flood stages.

From southeastern Louisiana northward to eastern Tennessee and the interior of the Carolinas heavy rains were reported, while moderate rains fell in the remainder of the cotton belt westward into eastern Texas. A storm had intensified the southern storm had intensified the southern storm had intensified the southern storm.

Northeast storm warnings were ordered from Jacksonville, Fla., to the Delaware breakwaters.

Mellon Opposition Weak; Brief Tenure of Office Expected of Secretary

Senate Vote on Confirmation Likely to Show Strength Rather For Pennsylvanian.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
Washington, March 5.—The opposition to Mr. Mellon remaining in the treasury is not enough to endanger him. If there should be a roll call, the number of voters against confirming Mr. Mellon might readily be as little as ten out of the 96 senators. The disposition not to interfere with Mr. Mellon is increased by the common understanding that his remaining in the nature of an honor for a comparatively short time. The leading republican newspaper in Mr. Mellon's state, The Philadelphia Ledger, has stated that "he will retire within a year." The newspaper allusions say Mr. Mellon's motive is one of understandable pride, that he wishes to complete his career by serving under three presidents. In that case, as The Ledger puts it, he will have "equalled the length of service of another Pennsylvanian, Albert Gallatin, secretary of the treasury under Presidents Jefferson and Madison." A natural reason for anticipation that Mr. Mellon's tenure will be comparatively brief, is his age, which will be 75 on the 24th of March, next. Hardly any man of that age has ever been appointed initially to any cabinet post, especially to so arduous a one as the treasury has become.

The disposition not to interfere with Mr. Mellon's continuing is overwhelming. In the senate last week, two of the principal critics of Mr. Mellon's administration were brought up by the two leading senatorial critics of him, McKellar of Tennessee and Coughens of Michigan. In the end there was a vote which, stated very roughly, was on the question of requiring a change in treasury methods, which change is opposed by Mr. Mellon. The vote was only 10 senators in favor of the change and 66 against it.

Deserves Approval.
The net of the judgment of the impartial is that, taken as a whole, Mr. Mellon's administration of the treasury deserves high approval. This view is taken by many who admit some of the criticisms.

The criticisms of Mr. Mellon's method that were aired in the senate last week began with the allegation by Senator McKellar that three billion, five hundred million dollars of tax refunds have been made chiefly in large amounts to large corporations without adequate review or adequate publicity. McKellar argued that there should be "open hearings," where the claimants may come with their counsel and... where the government may pass upon the claims in the light of day. Senators Coughens charged that Mr. Mellon had practiced "long and persistent opposition to any reform on the question."

Senator Coughens, largely because of the detailed thoroughness of his presentation, has in large part a convincing effect. At times he is perhaps over-violent, using the word "maladministration" and even stronger phrases. From all quarters there has come into the criticisms of Mr. Mellon the fact that he is a stockholder in, as Senator McKellar put it, "sixty two great corporations." Some of these corporations are very large, and in some Mr. Mellon is the most important stockholder.

On this point, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, has said, in Mr. Mellon's defense, that the latter is "not a director and not an officer of any corporation." The old charge that Mr. Mellon had for many years an interest in a distillery was brought up again last week, together with an explanation of the circumstances by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania.

Large Sums Lost.
A further criticism sometimes made of Mr. Mellon is that about two years ago, due to lack of sufficient vigilance by the treasury, according to the critics, seriously improper conditions arose in several joint stock land banks in the west, resulting in several receiverships and the loss of large sums.

A final criticism looking rather more to the future than to the past has to do with the present state of credit. As it is put, "the United States has more money than any other country, but has almost the highest interest rates of any country. How come?" The innuendo meant to be implied is that this condition should not exist if the administration of the country's finances in the past has been as wise as Mr. Mellon's friends devoutly insist it has been.

Probably the direct subject of this criticism is the federal reserve board. The question is raised what is and what ought to be Mr. Mellon's relation to the federal reserve board. In any event, the price of credit and the distribution of credit is certain to be a large question in the near future.

DRAWINGS OF TECH STUDENTS PLACED ON EXHIBITION
Architectural drawings by students in the department of architecture at Georgia Tech Tuesday were placed on exhibition at the Student Club, 104 1-2 Forsyth street. The exhibition will continue until March 16.

Among the larger drawings are representations of subjects including a modern department store, an office building, a filling station and other modern business buildings. One or two drawings are "archaeological" projects, or architectural subjects faithfully carried out in some particular historical style.

Only one solution of the second puzzle may be submitted. No correction or change may be made in it after it is sent in.

No additional subscription payment is required with solution of the second problem.

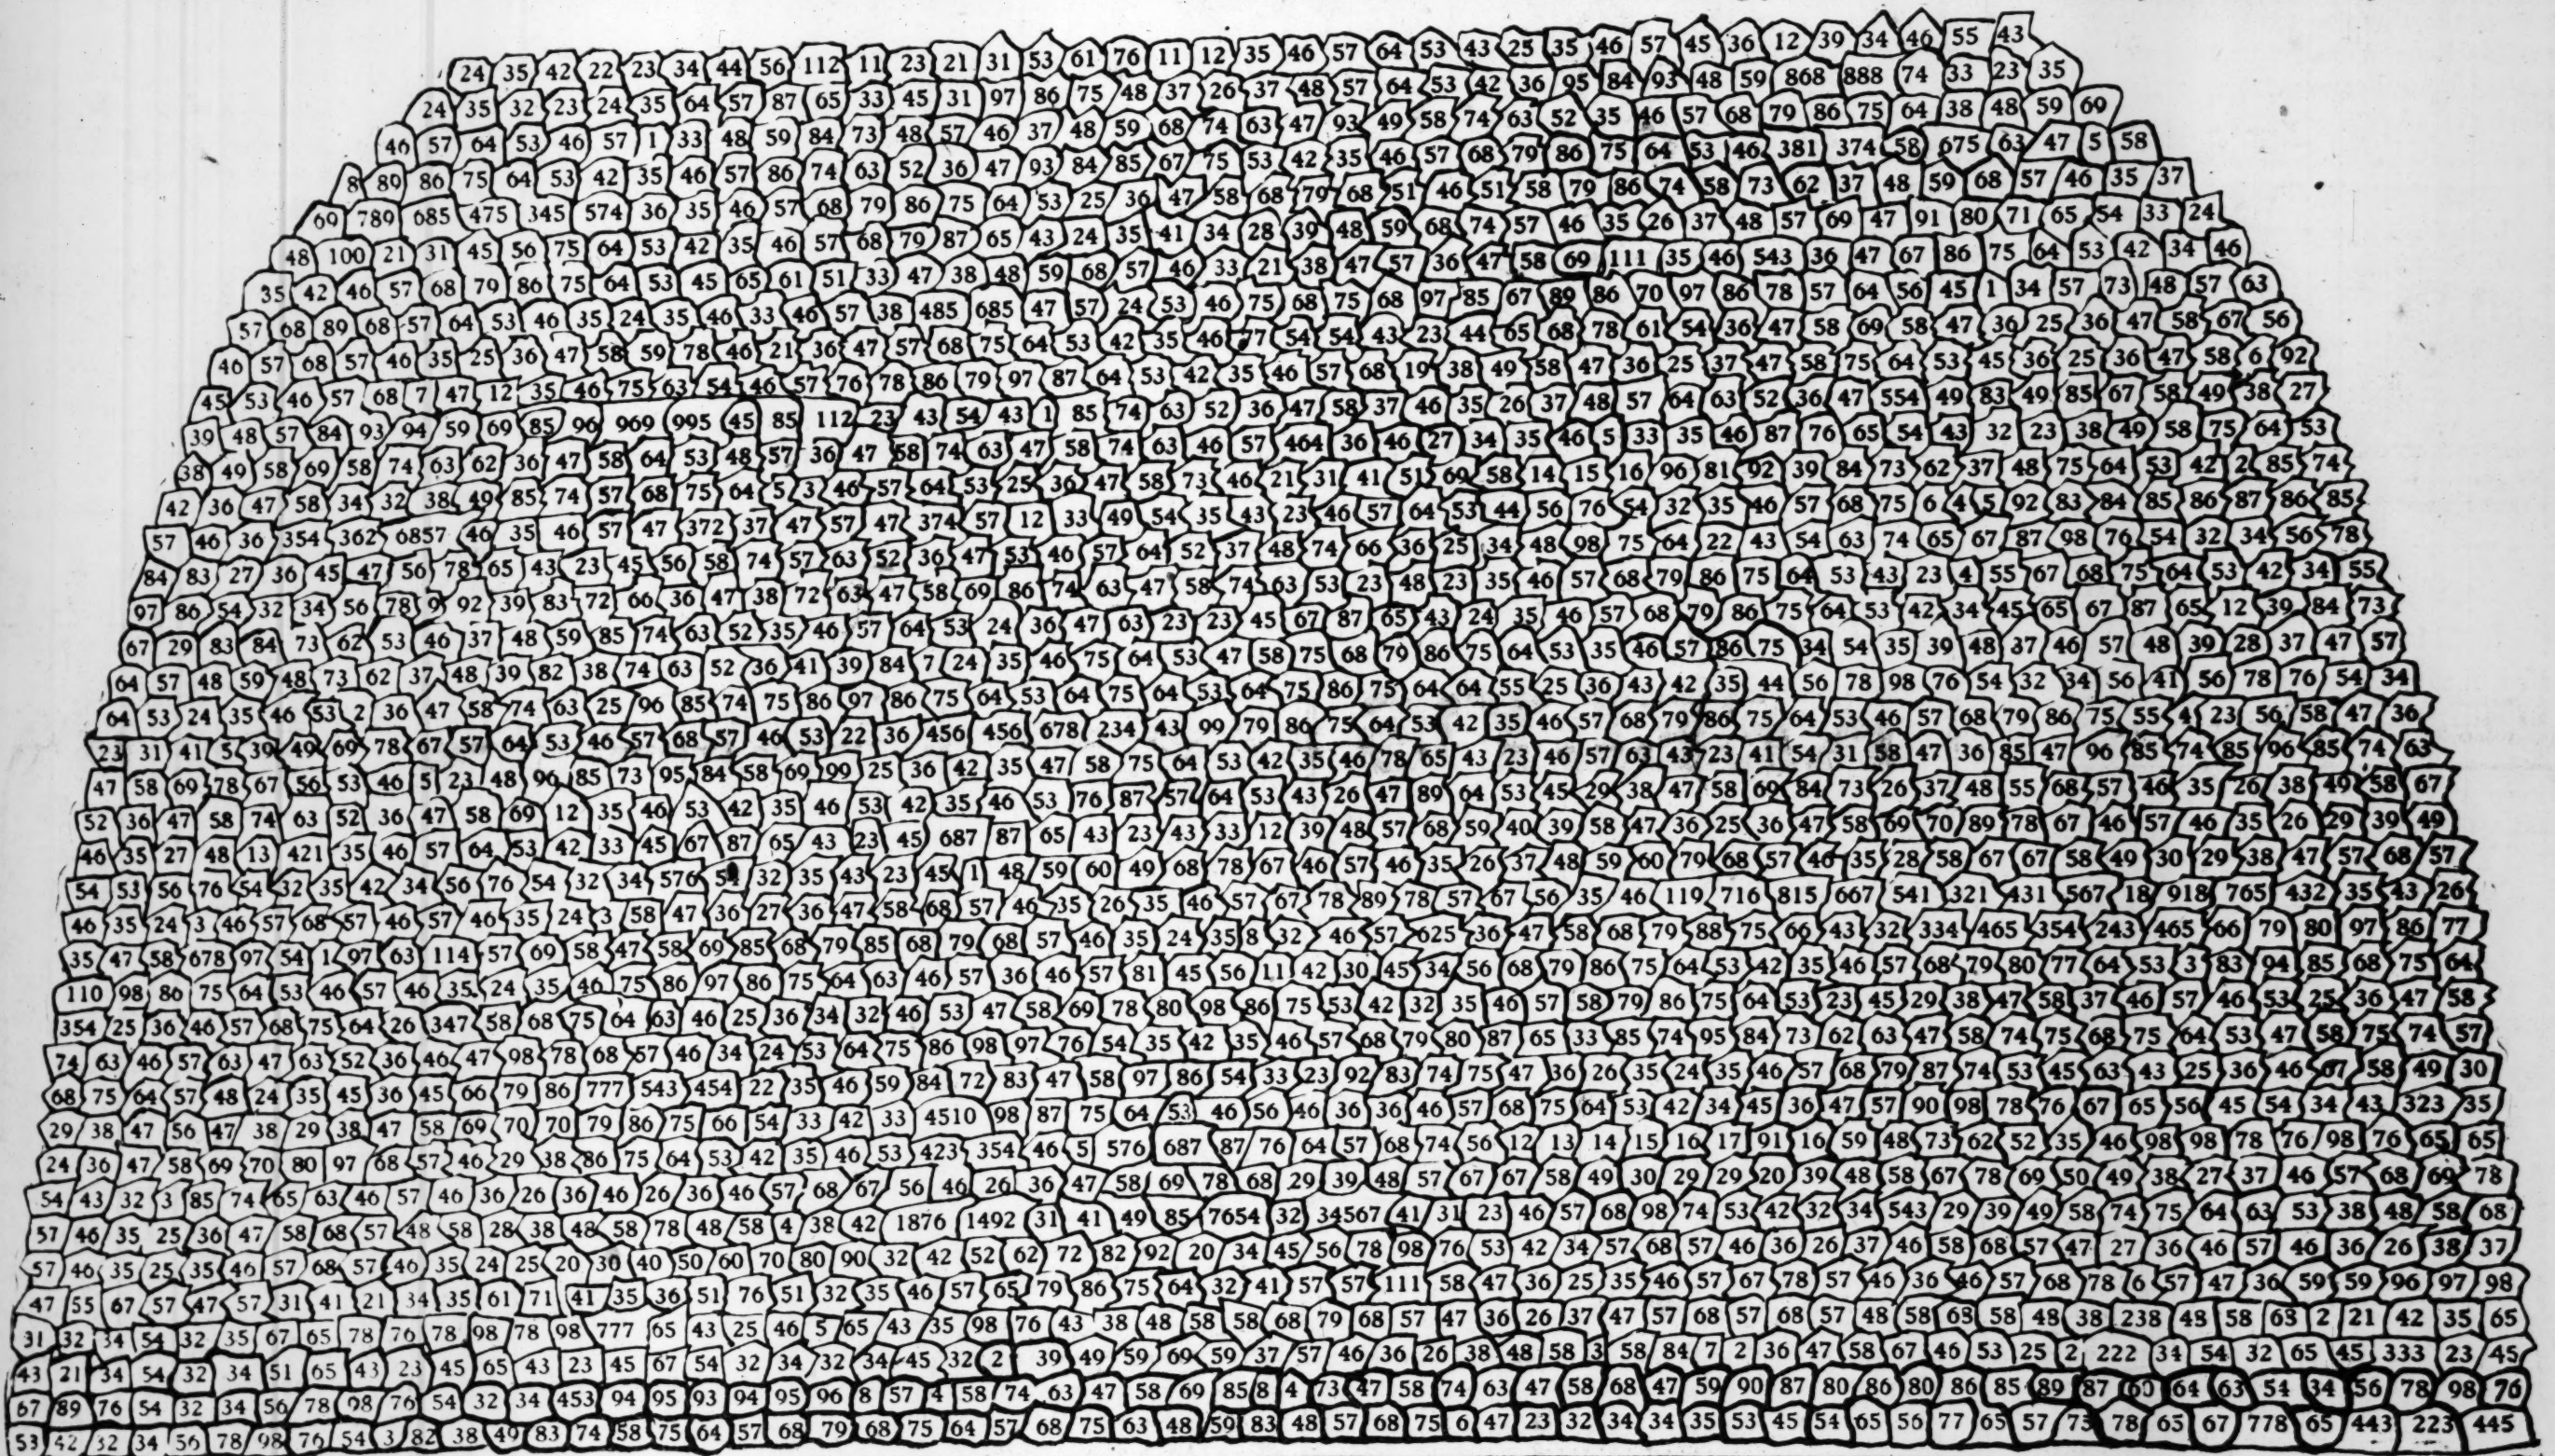

Three numbered charts of the second puzzle were mailed Tuesday, March 5, 1929, to all those entitled to solve it. Additional charts not available. From this date until Thursday, March 14, 1929, will be allowed to prepare the solution to the problem and mail or deliver it to The Atlanta Constitution. Those living in Atlanta desiring to deliver the solution in person must deliver it to The Constitution office by not later than 6:00 p. m. Thursday, March 14, 1929. Those sent by mail must bear a postmark of no later date than midnight, Thursday, March 14, 1929.

This published notice, in addition to the three additional charts mailed to the contestants, as stated above, is deemed of sufficient notice to such contestants. Of the tying contestants who may fail to see this published announcement, or to receive the charts sent by mail, and fail to give due notice of such, either in person or by mail by Thursday, March 14, 1929, such notice thereafter cannot be recognized. Solutions will not be accepted if mailed from points outside the territory specified in the first period of the contest, or held beyond the time limit.

SECOND PUZZLE CHART

THIS IS TOP OF CHART—Not necessary to return this chart with answer. Answer blank beneath must be used in writing your answer. Cut out neatly and send in as your solution.

The Problem

The numerals in the chart above are separated either by black line or space. In the print it may be that in some instances the black line does not show up distinctly. The space, however, indicates the black line, whether visible or not. There are no tricks in the chart.

Find the sum total of the even numerals and the sum total of the odd numerals, and the difference between the sum total of the even numerals and the sum total of the odd numerals is your answer.

Numerals ending in 0, 2, 4, 6, and 8 are even numerals, and numerals ending in 1, 3, 5, 7, and 9 are odd numerals. There can be only one correct sum total to the even numerals and only one correct sum total to the odd numerals, and naturally there can be only one correct difference, YOUR ANSWER.

It is just a simple matter of addition and then taking the smallest sum total from the largest sum total. Write your answer with pen or pencil, but be careful to write your figures plainly in blank prepared for your answer.

In the event of ties on this puzzle the rule for eliminating such ties as prescribed in the original contest will be effective. The Atlanta Constitution reserves the right at any time to reject any solution which it believes has not been submitted under the proper conditions. In other words, any group of persons working together and submitting more than one solution, all submitted by the group, will be barred. The Atlanta Constitution also reserves the right to finally decide any other questions or points which may arise in the contest, and participants by sending in their answers agree to accept the decision of the contest manager of The Atlanta Constitution as conclusive and final.

No matter whether a contestant is tied in problems 1, 2, or 3, any one or all, only one answer is required. A contestant now tied in any one or more problems, in submitting his answer to this second problem should there again be ties, and he is one of the tying contestants, he will then tie in as many problems as he is now tied with in the first problem.

Read Carefully!

All the working papers used in solving the present arrangement of the puzzle must be preserved, and each one submitting a solution must furnish on demand satisfactory proof that the solution was the result of his own unaided effort, and he was not aided by someone else who also submitted a solution.

Important!

Conveying the result of a solution of this puzzle from one contestant to another contestant, both of whom, directly or indirectly, submit solutions of this puzzle, by mail, telephone, telegraph, or any other method, eliminates all parties concerned in transferring such information from the contest.

The answer to this second problem must be delivered to The Atlanta Constitution by 6:00 P. M. Thursday or mailed either in Atlanta, Ga., or adjoining states, viz., Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, showing postmark of no later date than Thursday, midnight, March 14th, 1929.

The result of the answers to this second problem will be published as soon as possible after all of the answers have been received, which should not be later than the 18th or 19th of March.

The Atlanta Constitution will not be responsible for letters or answers lost or unduly delayed in the mails either from The Atlanta Constitution to the contestant, or from the contestant to The Atlanta Constitution.

No employees of The Atlanta Constitution or contest department, in fact, no one, knows the correct answer to this "Second Problem" puzzle, and will not know until after March 14th, 1929, and after the answers have been received by The Constitution and compiled.

Mail your solution to the CONTEST MANAGER, THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA.

MRS. FELTON BETTER AFTER CRASH INJURIES

Aged Woman, Ex-U. S. Senator, Able to Take Nourishment in Bed.

Cartersville, Ga., March 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Rebecca Lattimer Felton, 93-year-old former United States senator from Georgia, was progressing favorably today from facial injuries received in an automobile accident Sunday. At the Rhyne hotel, where she was confined, Mrs. Felton was able to take liquid nourishment, and despite deep gashes over each eye, her upper lip and jaw, that required 20 stitches, no complications have been noted by her physicians.

The first woman ever to become a United States senator looked forward to visitors today, although her physicians said it would be best for her to remain at the hotel for another day or two to avoid possibility of complications or infection.

Mrs. Felton was injured when the automobile driven by her grandson, William H. Felton, collided with another car and the aged lady was thrown against a rear window glass.

BANK FORCED TO SHUT DOORS AT EATONTON

Middle Georgia Bank Finds Strain Too Severe After Long Struggle.

Eatonton, Ga., March 4.—(Special.)—The Middle Georgia bank, of Eatonton, of which Dr. B. W. Hunt was president, closed its doors today. It could no longer stand the strain to which it has been subjected since the advent of the boll weevil, which practically annihilated the cotton crop of Putnam county.

The Middle Georgia bank, under the direction of Dr. Hunt, stood the shock, though at heavy personal cost to him and to his brother-in-law, E. B. Ezell. In many cases out of their own pockets they stood the losses of farmers who were in dire distress by assuming their bank obligations. Others were carried over from year to year and finally it was found impossible to realize on much of the frozen paper that was considered as good as gold a few years ago.

It is said that Dr. Hunt and Mr. Ezell put up as much as $30,000 out of their own funds to save the bank, but it was found impossible to do so. This bank was established by Dr. Hunt and Mr. Ezell many years ago and no man in Putnam county has done more for the development of the county or is more highly esteemed in the county than Dr. Hunt. He has the universal sympathy of the community, which realizes fully that he stood by the bank to the limit of his resources.

AVIATION LECTURE GIVEN THURSDAY AT AGNES SCOTT

Decatur, March 5.—(Special.)—The Agnes Scott Lecture association announces as the last attraction of the season an illustrated travelogue by Gilbert McClure entitled "Fly With Me Above Pike's Peak" on Thursday evening. Moving pictures and stereoscopic slides will be shown. Mr. McClure has lectured in all the large cities of the east and comes directly from Philadelphia, where he is appearing before the Geographical society of that city.

The lecture is open to the public and will start at 8:30.

MERCER TRUSTEES MEET WEDNESDAY TO PLAN PROGRAM

Macon, Ga., March 5.—(Special.)—The board of trustees of Mercer university will meet on the college campus at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning to formulate plans for the academic year 1935-36. Matters to receive the attention of the trustees will be the proposed erection of a $50,000 law building; the establishment of a fraternity row on the campus and the election of teachers for the coming school year.

T. S. Lowry, Macon business man, will present the university with a portrait of the late Dr. Cullen Battle, one of the founders of Mercer, at 10:30 tomorrow morning. The trustees will attend the presentation ceremony, which will be held in the chapel auditorium. The portrait was painted by Cullen Battle IV, of Asheville, N. C., a great-grandson of the Mercer founder, Dr. E. T. Holmes, of Macon, a trustee, will accept for the university.

The trustees will be the guests of the Macon Rotary club for luncheon at 1 o'clock. The Rev. Walter P. Biens, pastor of the First Baptist church, of LaGrange, and president of the Mercer Alumni association, will address the Rotarians.

FOUNTAIN URGES NEGROES TO RALLY TO MORRIS BROWN

Bishop W. A. Fountain Tuesday urged laymen and friends in the state to assist pastors and churches in their financial rally for Morris Brown university, which will be held in Macon, April 24-25. His address was made at a meeting of the A. M. E. Ministers' union.

Dr. J. L. Butler, president of the A. M. E. Ministers' union, and pastor of Big Bethel church, announced that his congregation would register one hundred per cent loyal in this financial effort for Morris Brown.

Dr. W. B. L. Clark, pastor of Allen Temple; Dr. L. R. Parker, of St. Paul A. M. E. church, city, and A. D. Hardeman, of Cosmopolitan church, all predicted the rally would be a success.

Rev. L. C. Ivey, of North Carolina, addressed the body on the "Fitness of Religious Denominational Unity of the Races." Dean S. Yarbrough, of the Training School of Social and Religious Workers, also addressed the union.

David T. Howard, the oldest negro undertaker and embalmer in the city, made a gift to Morris Brown college, to which he has been contributing for 45 years, he said.

ELIHU ROOT SEEKING U. S. ENTRY IN LEAGUE

Explains Formula to Council Showing Meaning of American Reservation.

Geneva, March 5.—(AP)—Elihu Root today made his first concrete move to get the United States into the world court of justice. He had a long talk with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, and explained his formula, designed to bridge the difficulty created by the American reservation concerning the right of the council of the league to ask the court for advisory opinions.

There is a question whether the United States can be given privileges which may well be demanded by other non-member states, and even by member countries which are not members of the council.

The point of this observation is that the Root formula gives the right to the United States to exchange views with the council to determine whether an American objection to a request for an advisory opinion should be sustained or rejected.

An informal exchange of ideas occurred tonight at a dinner which Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league, gave for several members of the council and the American jurist.

Jury Completed To Try Young Widow on Charge Of Murdering Husband

Courtroom at Ludowici Packed for First Day at Trial of Mrs. Lula Delk.

Ludowici, Ga., March 5.—(AP)—Before a crowded courtroom, a jury was completed in superior court here today to try Mrs. Lula G. Delk, 29-year-old widow, on a charge of murder for the alleged poisoning of her husband, Stoney Delk.

The young defendant, modestly attired, chewed gum as she calmly watched the opening day's preliminaries from a seat before the table occupied by her counsel. Close to her sat J. W. Stafford, Jr., son of a former Liberty county sheriff, who has been accused of conspiring with her to poison Delk so that they might continue a love affair.

J. W. Ginn, Mrs. Delk's father, also was present and occasionally assisted defense attorneys in the process of jury selection.

The work of choosing the jury panel proved slow because of the number of prospective veniremen who said they had formed opinions in the case and the necessity of disqualifying those related to signers of a petition asking for a grand jury inquiry into Delk's death. Only a few of the prospective jurors voiced objection to capital punishment.

Jury Personnel.
Composing the jury are: Claude Barnhill, carpenter; A. M. Price, farmer; W. R. Akin, farmer; W. A. Thompson, farmer; C. C. Murray, farmer; W. H. Deal, farmer; Troy Bland, farmer; R. L. Horne, Jr., automobile dealer; D. O. McDonald, farmer; L. W. Burkhalter, school teacher; Freddie Parker, farmer, and C. A. Odum, farmer.

Before the introduction of testimony began, Solicitor-General J. T. Grice, who is heading the prosecution, requested and was granted permission by Judge J. Saxon Daniel, presiding, to inquire of defense counsel who employed them. They replied they had been retained by Mrs. Delk's father to defend her and by J. D. Stafford, of Hinesville, father of the younger Stafford, to act as his counsel when his case is tried following that of Mrs. Delk.

The Long county superior courtroom was filled to capacity with approximately 200 persons when the case was called this morning.

Delk, who was 26 years old, died on September 18, 1928, while he was home on parole from the Milledgeville prison farm, where he was serving a term for violating the prohibition law.

The state will seek to show, the solicitor-general said in his opening statement, that Mrs. Delk met Stafford while her husband was in prison and that she conspired with him to kill Delk when they foresaw the possibility that their alleged affair would be interrupted by his release.

First Exonerated.
Circumstances surrounding Delk's death brought an investigation by a coroner's jury which exonerated Mrs. Delk and Stafford. Later, however, they were indicted at a special session of the Long county grand jury, which was summoned in response to a petition circulated by residents of this vicinity. The petitioners said they suspected that Delk did not die a natural death and urged the investigation which followed.

An attempt will be made by the state to show that Mrs. Delk administered strychnine to her husband, prosecuting attorneys have announced. A bottle, partly filled with a substance supposed to be such a poison, was found in the house, it was said.

Mrs. Delk has denied that she contributed in any manner to her husband's death and said the only medicine she gave him was quinine in capsules which had been prescribed for his cold.

The widow has been held in jail

CAPONE WILL RETURN TO CHICAGO SOON

Gang Leader Will Obey Summons When He Shakes Case of Influenza.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Al Capone will go to Chicago from his winter home here as soon as he recovers sufficiently from a mild attack of influenza, he told newspapermen here today.

"I'll go there and get it over with as soon as I get better," he said when asked what response he would make to a subpoena issued for his appearance before Chicago authorities in connection with recent gangland murders.

He said that he had been laid up with the "flu" for some time and that he could not say just when he would leave for the Illinois city.

He had nothing to say about the killings in Chicago other than to assure reporters that he did not intend to remain in the city very long. Members of his organization are under legal fire for alleged participation in events leading up to and including recent slaying by machine guns of a group of gangsters in a north side garage.

The summons, he said, was served on him last week by a United States deputy marshal from Jacksonville, since her arrest nearly three months ago, while Stafford has been at liberty under $5,000 bond. M. Price, R. L. Dawson and Arley Darsey are acting as their attorneys.

The south-bound New York plane was delayed by bad weather in the east.

The plane for Chicago delayed its departure until the arrival of the Miami mail, sent by train Monday night from Dallas, Ga.

The plane for New Orleans, awaiting information concerning the New York mail, was not able to depart because of approaching darkness.

Air mail schedules, aided by a cessation of rain and a wind which blew away clouds and dried off airports, almost returned to normal Tuesday and should do even better today, when clear, cold weather is predicted by the meteorologist.

Passenger service has been resumed on the Atlanta-New Orleans air mail route after a lapse of some time, one of the company's big four-place Eaker Universal monoplanes landing at Candler field Tuesday afternoon. Regular passenger schedules to New Orleans and return will be maintained henceforth, officials stated Tuesday night.

With fields at Chattanooga and Nashville rapidly assuming the aspect of real airports, Interstate Airlines, Inc., operator of the Atlanta-Chicago route, is anticipating the reopening of passenger service on June 1. It was stated Tuesday that night flying would be inaugurated about July 1, on which date the practice of carrying mail by night and passengers by day will be instituted. The present Stearnman open-cockpit ships will be replaced by the company's four-place Fairchild cabin monoplanes.

College fraternities for 10, these many years have stopped at almost nothing in their efforts to affix the fatal pledge button to the lapel of the unwary freshman, but here's a new gag, from far-off Kansas. It seems that a certain well known lodge employs an Englewood airplane to "rush" its prospects into the air, and finds it a comparatively simple matter, when the youth again reaches the ground, dazed and delighted, to herd him into the fold. It might prove

Humberto Signed For Thursday Go

The way things are beginning to shape up, Earl McGorry, Memphis wrestling impresario, who is attempting to revive the wrestling interest in this city, will get off to a good start.

The Memphis promoter came to Atlanta with one thing in mind—to bring some good grapplers here and try and build himself up a nice business and from the looks of his first main bout he will offer a good show.

He has matched Jack Humberto and Mike Ramano for his two-hour bout and says he will bring in some good boys for his opener. Both Ramano and Humberto are well known wrestlers and should put up a good scrap as good scraps go in the bone-crushing game. They will meet in a two-out of three fall match Thursday night at the city auditorium.

Palmer Elected Bulldog Captain

Athens, Ga., March 5.—According to word received here from Atlanta, Henry Palmer, star forward, will captain the Georgia Bulldogs on the court next winter, he having been elected at a meeting held in Atlanta Monday night.

Palmer, in addition to being a good basketball player, was a regular end on the football squad last fall. He is an honor student and led the sophomore class last year in his grades. He hails from Chevenne, Wyo., and is a member of the A. T. O. fraternity.

Faults of Shot Show in Finish

ROGER WETTERED'S CHIP

JOYCE WETTERED'S PUTT

FINISHES

GILLY PUCKER'S DRIVE

ROGER WETTERED'S IRON

BY SOL METZGER.

Almost invariably the orthodox golf star gradually closes his stance as he plays the gamut of shots ranging from putt to drive until it is square (toes parallel) to the line for the latter. Thus, all well executed shots find the player facing the hole at the finish. Still, a glance at each player as he or she finishes the stroke enables one to tell what shot has been played.

The law of physics to the effect that every action has an equal and opposite reaction holds with the golf swing. Thus, at the end of putt or short chip the golfer's position indicates that nothing but wrists and forearms were used. In the case of the massive finish a bit of bracing indicates that a bit of body was tossed in. And at the finish of a full swing we can be sure that the full weight and swing effort were employed because the left foot is braced to catch the forward shift of weight and the club is up and over the left shoulder.

These results are natural. They indicate clearly what shot has been played. Incorrect finishes prove clearly that the swing was faulty. Study these sketches and get a mental picture of each finish so it will help you in correcting your game. Tomorrow—the grip.

BASKETBALL

Y. C. A. A.

Teachtree Christian's quintet outplayed Western Heights in all departments of the game Tuesday night on a "C" court, and the leading Western Heights outfit suffered its worst defeat of the season, 18-16. The game was fast and furious and many fouls were called. The defensive work of Green and Dobbie were exceptional, good, while Wilkerson broke loose in the first half and made 10 of 13 points for the highest scoring honors.

It took an extra period for Inman Park to take a 25-14 decision over Christ Presbyterian. The first floor work of Doris was most responsible for Northwest Atlanta's 24-19 win over the Boethians. The Black and Gold class after being held close by over half the time, scored 10 points and came out a 26-19 winner over the Yonema class. Phillips being the outstanding star for the winners. Smith of Inman Park had an accurate eye for sinking free shots that decided the battle.

Wednesday night at 7:30 the Y. C. A. A. will hold a basketball meeting. Last year the association had a splendid season and from all indications an even better one is expected.

City Amateur Cage Tourney Here Thursday

First Game Will Start at 7:30 O'clock; Y. M. C. A. Court Scene of Games.

Atlanta's first city amateur basketball championship tournament was made a certainty when managers of eight of the leading teams of the city met at the Y. M. C. A. and completed final plans for the meet. Preliminary games will get under way Thursday night with Alpha class, winners of the Seaside league, playing the Calvary Methodist, of the American S. S. league, at 7:30 o'clock at the Y.

College Park Methodist, winner of the Epworth league, will meet the Georgia Power company's club, one of the strongest teams in the Scott league. This game will start at the conclusion of the opening tilt. Western Heights Baptist, champion of the Dixie league, will meet the winners of the National league, the Triple E. class, of Second Baptist, while the Pullman company, another of the teams of the Trammell Scott league, will meet one of several teams that are seeking entry into this tournament.

A handsome loving cup will be awarded the winning team and individual prizes will be given the outstanding players. The selection of "Shorty" Doyal and "Killy" Rogers to officiate assures the players the best in this department.

The first big upset. In the other matches Norman H. Maxwell, of Philadelphia, defeated George Reid, of Greenville, S. C., 5 and 4, and James A. Fowles, of Pittsburgh, beat H. Hewitt Swoope, of Philadelphia, 2 and 0.

Tomorrow Fowles meets Homans in the top bracket and Maxwell plays Reid in the lower.

Satsuma Oranges

Some 30 years ago a resident of the Gulf Coast secured and put out a few Satsuma orange trees. The Satsuma is of Japanese origin, small, oblate, popularly known as the "kid glove orange." Many think it the most delicious of all oranges.

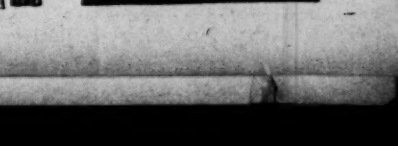

From the first, the agricultural workers of the L. & N. R. R. were interested in the new fruit, hoping its cultivation would give to the Gulf Coast Regions, which the railroad so largely serves, a new and important orchard industry, and bring into use large areas of the unused lands. The railroad horticulturist studied the fruit, methods of propagating the stock, planting and cultivation, methods of fighting pests which might afflict trees, particular localities and soil best adapted for orchards, most valuable stock for commercial plantings, effects of very low temperatures on the trees, methods of marketing, and all that has to do with the development of Satsuma production.

They have worked with the individual grower, the growers' associations, state and government representatives, in the solution of many problems which have arisen. The progress made, the ready reception of the fruit in the markets, the prices obtained for it, and notable returns made by many of the orchards, have convinced the belief of the railroad workers that a few more years will find the Satsuma orange in quantity in all the principal markets of the country.

Though the industry is still at its beginning, as many as 700 cars of Satsumas have been sent to market in a season, nearly all from the two counties where its commercial production was earliest started. From these two counties, largely in connection with the assistance of the L. & N. horticultural workers, commercial orchards have spread throughout the entire Gulf Coast Region. Trees now planted will soon give an output of more than 1,000 carloads a year, shipped in October and November, the earliest oranges reaching the market.

Horticulturists of the L. & N. R. R. will readily and without charge give assistance to all in their territory who are planning Satsuma orange or other orchards. These horticulturists, located at various points on the railroad, are employed to give practical assistance in the building up of all fruit growing industries, and of the production of vegetables.

Transporting passengers and freight are not the only duties of a great railroad system, and its obligations to the public it serves are fully recognized by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

You have to drive the New ALL-AMERICAN to be up to the minute on motor cars

At the wheel of the New Oakland All-American... with its wealth of power and its soaring speed under your easy control. That's where you have to sit to learn what's what in automobiles. Where you bring yourself up-to-the-minute on motor cars.

You learn what truly magnificent performance a car of moderate price can provide. When it's powered by a big, smooth L-head engine. When it embodies such vital advancements as a counter-weighted crankshaft... the G-M-R cylinder head... the cross-flow radiator... the Harmonic Balance... a balanced "line of drive"... and quiet internal brakes that are proof against weather and dirt.

You learn the true meaning of luxury as applied to automobiles. As you fit the adjustable driver's seat to your own comfort. As you sink into the comfortable cushions... roomy with that roominess for which bodies by Fisher are famed.

You don't have to drive it to learn what triumphant new beauty and style the New All-American displays. But if you want to know the modern idea of motor car performance... come in and drive this great New All-American Six.

Prices $1145 to $1375, f. o. b. factory, plus delivery charges. Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers and spring covers included in list prices. Bumpers and rear fender guards extra. GIFTS SHOWERED ON COUNCILMAN AND MRS. WHITE

A gift shower to Councilman and Mrs. John A. White, of the fourth ward, from residents of the section featured the regular meeting of the Fourth Ward Improvement association Tuesday night at the Smilie school. More than 125 gifts were presented to Mr. and Mrs. White as tokens of esteem.

Representatives of the city government and every organization within the ward paid tribute to the work of Mr. White in city council, including Mayor Pro Tem, Robert E. Pennington; Milton D. Berry, of the Boulevard Park Civic league; E. Stevens, of the Morningside Civic league; E. Montgomery, of the fourth ward; Mrs. Chester Johnson, of West End; Miss Kate King, of the Forrest Avenue school and Parent-Teacher association; Judge Murphy M. Holloway, of police court, and J. Ira Harrelson.

Mrs. Dean Morrison extended greetings to the meeting, which was presided over by W. N. Gallagher. Mrs. Dorena Allen gave several violin solos.

GUNMAN WOUNDED IN PISTOL BATTLE WITH POLICEMEN

Harrisburg, Pa., March 5.—(AP)—A gunman was fatally wounded today in a pistol battle with police in the lobby of a downtown hotel here after he had held up the night clerk in an attempt to rifle the cash drawer. He died in a hospital after he had been partly identified as A. H. Browne, of New Orleans, alias Frank Thompson, of Lancaster.

The man registered last night and this morning confronted the night clerk. On a pretext of going to the second floor to arouse the day clerk and get the cash box, the clerk, William A. Kiddle, telephoned to the police.

Browne retreated behind the elevator cage when the police arrived and exchanged fire with the police. He dropped with a bullet through the head.

L. AND N. DERAILED IN TENNESSEE; NO ONE BADLY HURT

Franklin, Tenn., March 5.—(AP)—Passenger train No. 2 of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, northbound from Birmingham, was partially derailed about four miles south of here about 6 o'clock this evening. Six cars and one engine left the tracks. No one was seriously injured, it was said at the station here.

A broken side rail was said to have been the cause of the derailment. The wreck occurred about one mile north of West Harpeth. A wrecking crew is en route here from Decatur, Ala.

Negro Youth Reports Bandits Held Him Up for $21.

Joe Kimber, negro delivery boy for the Crew Drug company, at 159 Forrest avenue, reported to police Tuesday night that two negroes held him up and robbed him of $21 just after he had made a delivery on Forrest avenue, near Boulevard.

STEWART OUSTER ONLY AIM OF ROCKEFELLER

Group Leader Tells of Intentions in Indiana Standard Oil Fight.

Chicago, March 5.—(AP)—The only plans the Rockefeller faction has regarding the Standard Oil Company of Indiana are for the removal of Colonel Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of directors, Winthrop W. Aldrich, of New York, leader of the group, said today.

Mr. Aldrich was asked in regard to rumors that these companies were behind John D. Rockefeller in his demand for Stewart's resignation because the Indiana corporation was stepping on their toes by not confining its activities to its middle west territory. His reply was a complete denial of such alliance.

Mr. Aldrich said about 50 per cent of the total of more than 9,000,000 outstanding shares of the company had been checked in against Stewart, and he refused to estimate what percentage of that number would be lost through revocations.

"I am absolutely certain of success, however," he smilingly assured newspapermen.

In the meantime the gray-haired, huge framed chief executive of the company who defied John D. Jr., to oust him, refused to concede defeat. He said the battle was not over until after the stockholders' meeting to be held Thursday in Whiting, Ind., where the company has its largest refinery. He had to his credit 99.67 per cent of the proxies of the employees and he claimed the majority of the middle west stockholders' proxies.

PRESIDENT HOOVER WILL BE INVITED TO EDUCATION MEET

Definite announcement that President Herbert Hoover will be invited to speak at the convention of the National Education association, to be held here the latter part of June and the first part of July, was made Tuesday by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, who has just returned from a meeting of the department of superintendence at Cleveland.

A committee composed of Senators William J. Harris and Walter F. George, other Georgia and southeastern senators and representatives, a group of Atlantans and officials of the organization will extend the invitation in person within the near future, according to present plans.

The decision was reached at a conference with Dr. Vel W. Lambkin, of Maysville, Mo., president of the association, and Dr. J. W. Crabtree, of Washington, secretary. More than 15,000 delegates from all parts of the world are expected to attend the sessions.

In addition to Mr. Hoover, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York; Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, will be asked to appear on the program.

AVIATION GROUP WILL CAPITALIZE AT $35,000,000

New York, March 5.—(AP)—A new large grouping of American aviation interests was disclosed today in the announcement of the formation of the Aviation corporation, a holding company with initial capital of $35,000,000. Its authorized capital is $200,000,000.

The new company, described as a development corporation to cover the entire scope of the industry, is headed by Graham G. Grosvenor, New York, president of the Fairchild Aircraft Manufacturing company. Directors include several prominent railroad and steamship officials as well as bankers, industrialists and aviation specialists.

Mr. Grosvenor, who will be the president, said Aviation corporation will acquire substantial interests in at least six established companies. The identity of these concerns was withheld pending completion of negotiations.

Solitary Confinement Meted Out to 4 Negroes, Plot to Escape Foiled

Following an interrupted plot to escape from the city jail, four negroes, confessed holdup men, Tuesday night were being held in solitary confinement. Working all Monday night, the four men had used sharpened spoons to remove a block of eighteen bricks from the wall of their cell. They threw the cement scraped from between the bricks into a drain pipe. The drain pipe clogged, flooding the cell with water and bringing an investigation which disclosed the plan to escape. The negroes are Louis Page, Johnson Kelly, Will Green and Wilson Senior.

BOONE EXPECTED TO BE PHYSICIAN FOR PRESIDENT

Washington, March 5.—(AP)—Commander Joel T. Boone, at present medical officer of the presidential yacht Mayflower, will be appointed as personal physician to President Hoover. This will be in addition to his present duties. Commander Boone, whose home is in Pennsylvania, was especially assigned as physician to Mr. Hoover as president-elect during the last part of the good-will tour to Latin America.

Quick Relief From Neuralgic Pains

To relieve those aches and pains that accompany and follow bad colds, grippe and flu, such as headache, neuralgia, rheumatic pains and aching limbs and joints, nothing is so quickly and delightfully effective as Capudine. It quickly banishes the chilly sensations, allays the aches and pains and gives a feeling of comfort to the patient.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly—much quicker than tablets and powders. It relieves pain by soothing the nerves and does not upset the stomach. For thirty years millions of people have found Capudine satisfactory—a joy and comfort to everyone who suffers from pain. Sold by all druggists—30c and 60c sizes, also trial size.—(adv.)

Dolores Costello In Her Greatest Role "The Redeeming Sin"

The most gorgeous woman of the screen. The most fascinating city of the world. A combination of these is what will be seen and heard in Warner Bros. Sound and Talking Picture. "The Redeeming Sin," which will open at the Howard Monday.

Not only the most beautiful actress on the screen today, but among the most versatile is the exquisite and exotic Dolores Costello in this, her latest sound and talking picture. With her, as leading man, is Conrad Nagel, the determined hero of "Tenderloin," and the gallant Jerome Bonaparte in "Glorious Betsy." So perfect did this pair of actors perform in these parts that Warner Bros. cast them for a third time together, furnishing them with entirely new and colorful roles to portray.

Gay Paris, the city which will always be the city of romance and mystery. Not only have French authors found in its cathedrals and cobblestoned streets, its avenues and shadowy courts, its underground passages and its gay, silent river banks for immortal stories, but writers of practically every country have turned to it for colorful backgrounds. So, L. J. Jefferson, hired as others, penned the original story from which Harvey Gates adapted "The Redeeming Sin" for Miss Costello. It is a strong one, that of a sister's love for her small brother, late and around this great love has been woven a heart-stirring romance between a tempestuous Apache dancer of Paris underworld and a young doctor.

Totally unlike her former roles, in which she portrayed the beautiful and adored heroine, this versatile actress essays one of fire, candor and courage. Here she is cast as Jean Villard, dancer in a Montmartre cafe, a glittering, tempestuous creature, as willing to fight as to trip the light fantastic. Many acclaim this new characterization as the most alluring portrayal of her entire career, since her initial rise as leading lady to John Barrymore in "The Sea Beast," which began a romance of paramount interest, culminating in the recent marriage between these two celebrated stars.

Under the direction of Howard Bretherton, veteran and famed master of the microphone, "The Redeeming Sin" unfolds with such tenseness as to hold the audience in its tight grip throughout.

In the excellent supporting cast are George Stone, who will be remembered for his clever performance in "Tenderloin" with the two stars, Lionel Belmore, Nino Quartero, Philippe de Lacy and Warner Richmond.

Louie Lowry and his Merry Musical Men have prepared a stage treat, "Wild and Whoopee!"

Headlining an array of splendid performers is Earl La Vere, world-famed accordion player and comedian. During the world war Mr. La Vere won wide honor for his entertainment for the doughboys abroad.

Also, the Janton Sisters will prove their deft ability as dancers. Owen and Anderson, singers, claim high honors for their popular and well-selected numbers.

Lowry and his men will offer a brand-new band novelty designed to please even more than those highly entertaining ones of the past few weeks.

In addition to these attractions, last, but by a long shot not least, is the new solo organist, Al Evans. Atlanta audiences have never seen a novelty organist before. What a treat in store for each of you. Al Evans—"The Last Word" on the organ.

"Captain Applejack" Attracts Civilian and Military Society

Military and civilian society will attend en masse the presentation of the play "Captain Applejack" this evening at the Fort McPherson theater at 8:30 o'clock by the Fort McPherson Dramatic club. The cast includes a talented group of players from the military set, including Mrs. Rufus Parsons, Major Harry E. Dieber, Captain and Mrs. Robert Joerg, Jr., Miss Catherine Foster, Miss Patricia Donahue, Lieutenant and Mrs. I. H. Joffe, Captain Herbert F. Teate and Lieutenant T. D. Whitley. A group of pirates numbering members of the regiment, will add a picturesque scene in the second act, one of this number being Tom Proctor, the son of Lieutenant and Mrs. Gilbert Proctor. The production is under the direction of Mrs. Rufus Parsons, the gifted wife of Lieutenant Parsons, who is well known in theatrical circles as Desiree Stempel, having played for a number of years in New York.

Another event scheduled for today in which army and civilian society are interested is the luncheon at which Mrs. John King Ottley will be hostess at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country club, honoring Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, wife of Colonel Lee, U. S. A., stationed at fourth corps area headquarters, and Mrs. James Osgood Wynn, who returned recently to Atlanta from an extended absence.

The dinner-dance at the Biltmore hotel this evening will assemble a large number of the younger social contingent and will bring the day's social program to a delightful close.

Conservatory Faculty Members in Recital

Miss Hazel Wood, pianist; Miss Eugenie Dozier, danseuse, and Miss Agnes Adams, violinist, all members of the faculty, will be presented in recital by the Atlanta Conservatory of Music Wednesday evening, at 8:30 o'clock in Cable hall. Miss Wood, one of Atlanta's best-known accompanists and ensemble players, will give an interesting group of solos as well as accompany Miss Adams and Miss Dozier. Her numbers include "Chant d'Amour," "Stojanik," "Arabesque" in E. Debussy; "Arabesque" in G. Debussy; Miss Dozier will appear in two highly interesting dances, "Hungarian Dance" to Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6, "Choreography," by Michel Fokine and "Sacred River," to music especially written for the dance by Lily Strickland, the dance composed by Ruth St. Denis, and "Nautch Dance," by Strickland. Miss Adams, well-known violinist of ability and distinction, will play "Ballade and Polonaise," "Vieuxtemps," "Concertino," "d'Amorose," "Romance," "Wienawski," and "Fairy Sailing," "Bourgeois." It is impressive to note that these three young artists were honor graduates of the Conservatory before their election to posts on the faculty, and each summer season finds them in New York, Chicago or Boston in search of new designs and rebuilding of the repertoire under masters of note. The public is invited to the recital.

Pi Pi Club Meets Today

Members of the Pi Pi club will meet this afternoon with Miss Virginia Cooledge at her home on Peachtree battle avenue at 3 o'clock.

Miss Elizabeth Mason Is Honor Guest

Miss Dorothy Hackman, entertaining at her home, on Sterling street, N. E., Sunday afternoon, honoring Miss Elizabeth Mason, whose marriage to S. T. Killcrease will be an event of March. The guests enjoyed a contest entitled "A Motor Love Story," in which the prizes were won by Miss Mason and Mr. Killcrease. The bride was given a shower of handkerchiefs and presented with a guest prize. Those present were Misses Elizabeth Wheeler, Ruby Head, Mary Ellen Parks, Clyde Mahon, Laurence Mason, Edna Hackman, Bill Nevils, Fay Alexander and Georgia Alexander and Messrs. O. G. Marshall, John Moon, John M. Kolben, Elmo Hirsberg, E. R. Miller, Claude Gamble, Orville Wheeler, A. C. Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Tatum.

Lyons-Stewart Engagement Is At Tea Following Junior League Meet

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Virginia Bayless Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clay Lyons, of Louisville, Ky., to Joseph Alexander Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Adger Stewart, of the same city, carries social importance to Atlanta, as the groom-elect's father, Mr. Stewart, was a former resident of Atlanta, and spent his boyhood days here. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alexander Stewart, and brother of Robinson Stewart, Mrs. George Kearsley Selden, Mrs. Frances Stewart Rattle, Mrs. Anita Armstrong, of Atlanta; Mrs. James P. Champion, of Albany, Ga., and Mrs. Walter Farley Roberts, of Utica, New York.

The marriage will be a brilliant social event, taking place in April, and among the relatives attending the ceremony will be Mrs. Selden, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Champion. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart are among the leaders of Louisville, and their estate is one of the handsomest in the Blue Grass state.

The reports of standing committees featured the brief March meeting of the Atlanta Junior League held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving club. Reports were also made by the chairman of the various committees for the children's play, "Wizard of Oz," which the Junior League will present at four performances Friday and Saturday of this week.

Following the business meeting presided over by the president, Miss Margaret Nelson, a tea was held in compliment to Miss Dorothy Scott, of New York, who is the city's couch and direct the production, "Wizard of Oz." Following her presentation to the league members present by Miss Nelson, Miss Scott gave a short informal talk on the play, its cast and presentation. Due to Miss Scott's expert direction, her histrionic ability and thorough knowledge of her subject, "Wizard of Oz," will be among the outstanding non-professional theatricals ever staged in Atlanta. The proceeds of the play will go toward the support of the Junior League ward in the Eggleston Memorial hospital.

The Alliance Francaise meets Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. L. L. Lorrans, 150 Fifteenth street, N. E.

Miss Lucile Alexander, head of the French department of Agnes Scott, assisted by students from that department, will be in charge of the literary program for the afternoon. Continuing the study of the development of French drama, Miss Alexander will give a talk on its romantic period as exemplified by de Vigny and de Musset. A one-act comedy of de Musset, "Le Capitaine Corcoran," will be presented by the following four students, all members of the present senior class of Agnes Scott: Miss Marguerite Gerardi, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerardi, of New York; Miss Marie Permette Adams, of Charlotte, N. C.; and Miss Louise Thomas, of Portland, Maine.

Sigmar Enrico Leide, in charge of the music for the afternoon, has arranged an elaborate program of French music for voice, violin and piano. Miss Verdery Rosenbusch, Varikon, formerly of the Conservatory of Music at Budapest, she has also been active in dramatic work in Atlanta, having been a member of the Theatrical Guild, Playmakers and the Atlanta Drama League.

Dr. Williams is the son of Dr. John Franklin Williams and Mary Elizabeth Williams. His mother's people are natives of Georgia and it was in Atlanta that Dr. Edwin Williams received his medical education. After being graduated at Emory university, he accepted a position on the faculty of the physiology department of the medical school. He is a member of the Phi Beta Phi medical fraternity, bringing the program to a close, showed a clear insight to the different Schumann "Pavilions." Mrs. Hodgson, assisted by the students, served tea.

O. E. S. Committee To Sponsor Bridge

Mrs. W. A. Hitchcock and her committee of Martha chapter, No. 128, O. E. S., will sponsor a benefit bridge party Friday, March 8, at 2:30 o'clock at the Elks' club.

Many useful and beautiful prizes have been donated. Tables are $2 or 50 cents each. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Hitchcock, West 0658-J, or Mrs. Kilian, West 1880.

U. D. C. Sponsors Costume Concert

The costume concert, featuring outstanding musicians, will be given under the auspices of Rebecca Feltton, chapter, U. D. C., at Wesley Memorial church Thursday evening, March 7, at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Gertrude Arnold, well known soprano, will appear on the program.

The New York Times says of her: "Miss Arnold has gained a reputation through her beautiful voice and refined style of singing."

Selections from "Il Trovatore," Irish folk song, and other compositions, will be included in the rendition of Josef Martin, pianist. Daughters of Confederacy, Confederate veterans, world war veterans and musicians invited to be present as guests.

SHE THOUGHT HER CASE HOPELESS

Yet ALL-BRAN Brought Relief Almost Immediately—No Trouble Since

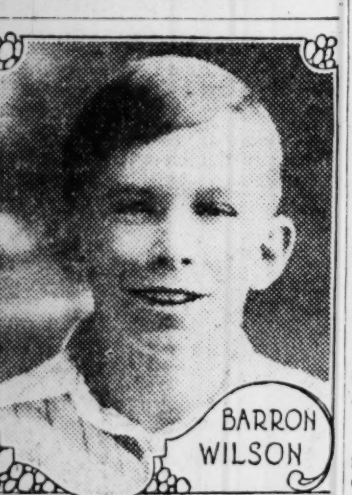

When constipation once gets a grip on a person, it is almost impossible to relieve it, let alone prevent it with drugs and treatments. But here's a lady who was freed from her suffering—read her letter.

"Mine was an extreme case of constipation and although I had tried almost everything that was recommended to me, I had almost given up hope of ever being relieved. One day I came across your advertisement, so I thought I would try ALL-BRAN. It relieved me almost immediately and I have had no trouble since, which was almost three months ago."—Mrs. E. E. Leslie, 2104 Lyman St., Flint, Michigan.

Your system must have roughage or bulk daily, otherwise constipation is almost inevitable. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply this bulk. It is a healthful cereal to eat every day. To use in cooked dishes or serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation and to prevent it. Far better than pills and laxatives whose doses often have to be increased to be effective. Two tablespoons daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran and is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Georgia Boy Needed Help

Barron Wilson, 25 Grand Ave., Center Hill, Atlanta, is a "regular fellow," active in sports and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "Barron suffered a great deal from constipation and with his stomach. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny. When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had very little trouble of that kind. I have used California Fig Syrup with all my children for colds and upset spells. They like it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps them so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.—(adv.)

GOOD ROADS SYSTEM URGED BY CARSWELL

"The time has come when the people of Georgia should rise up and demand a complete system of hard-surfaced roads throughout the state for without such a system, we are just marking time," said George Carswell, secretary of state, in an address before the Atlanta Lions club at the Henry Grady hotel Tuesday afternoon, in which he characterized as absolutely unjust the use of taxes paid by motorists for any purpose other than construction of highways.

"No one has a higher regard for schools than I have," the speaker declared, "but to take part of the money which is paid in by the motorists of the state and use it for school purposes is not right. We must be just before we are generous."

"Motorists last year paid into the state treasury approximately nine million dollars and this year, with federal aid, approximately fifteen million will be available. This money is paid for the privilege of riding on state roads and adequate highways in all fairness should be provided," the speaker said.

"The powers that be have us just where they want us," he continued, "and I do not think that the people of Georgia will authorize a bond issue or any similar plan until they can feel assured that the money will be spent so as to obtain the best possible results."

"Without wishing to criticize anyone, it can be said that the question of politics has entered too much into the affairs of our state, and in my opinion, faith must be reestablished in our highway department before any forward steps can be taken."

"Georgia will come into its own," he concluded, "but only after office-holders have decided to serve the state without regard for political results, and have given us a complete highway system and an adequate school system."

Conference Called on Order Banning Vegetable Shortening

The recent order issued by Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, banning the sale of vegetable shortenings in Georgia, will be discussed at a conference to be held today in the office of Attorney General George M. Napier. George N. Murdock, representing several Chicago companies which manufacture vegetable shortenings, will confer with the attorney general and Commissioner Talmadge in an effort to adjust the matter so that his companies can continue to sell their products in this state.

Commissioner Talmadge said he had granted an "informal extension" of his ban from March 4 to March 15 and had notified merchants handling such products that they must discontinue their sale after March 15.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

THE WANDERERS MAKE THEMSELVES AT HOME.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Be neighborly, and you will find Your friends reciprocate in kind.—Peter Rabbit.

It wasn't long before all the feathered folk who were wintering in the Old Orchard made the acquaintance of Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak and Mrs. Wanderer. At first they were regarded with suspicion, but this was for only a little while, for the Wanderers were very quiet people and attended strictly to their own business. They didn't interfere with others, so they made no enemies.

Of course, Farmer Brown's Boy soon discovered their presence and he was delighted. It was surprising to some of the other feathered folk to see how fearless Wanderer and Mrs. Wanderer were. They seemed not at all afraid of Farmer Brown's Boy and would allow him to come within a very short distance of them as they fed.

"I hope you'll like the Old Orchard and the Green Forest," said Tommy Tit, the Chickadee.

"I know a lot of his relatives," replied Wanderer.

"We do," replied Wanderer. "We like it very much, indeed. Already we feel very much at home here. It is one of the pleasantest places we have found in all our travels."

"Then I suppose you will stay," said Tommy Tit, his little black eyes twinkling.

"Of course we will," replied Wanderer. "Didn't I say that we feel very much at home here? We will stay until it is time for us to go back to our nest home."

"Is that very far away?" inquired Tommy Tit.

"It is quite a distance, quite a distance," said Wanderer, and he chuckled to himself.

"I suppose," said Tommy, "it is away up North."

"Yes," replied Wanderer, "it is away up North. Also, it is away up beyond the Purple Hills."

"But that is where jolly, round, red Mr. Sun goes to bed every night," exclaimed Tommy Tit.

"You mean," said Wanderer, "it is where it looks as if jolly, round, red Mr. Sun goes to bed. If you should go beyond those Purple Hills that you see from here, you would see jolly, round, red Mr. Sun appearing to go to bed each night just as far away in the distance as you see him here."

Tommy Tit thought this over for a few minutes. Then he looked down. There sat Peter Rabbit with his eyes very wide open and his ears standing straight up. And such a funny look on his face! It was the first time Peter had been up in the Old Orchard since the Wanderers had arrived. "Did you hear that, Peter Rabbit?" cried Tommy Tit.

Peter nodded. "Yes, but I don't believe it," replied Peter, most importantly.

Wanderer chuckled. He wasn't in the least bit offended. "People who do not travel have a great deal to learn," said he. "You could go for days and days and days straight over beyond the Purple Hills and never be any nearer to where jolly, round, red Mr. Sun goes to bed each night. You should travel. There is nothing like travel as a means of gaining knowledge."

Peter once more nodded. Then he sighed. "That's what I've heard," said he. "From some of the feathered folk who go away down South to spend the winter. But you are the first people I have ever met who have come

POSTOFFICE RECEIPTS AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Post office receipts for the first two months of 1929 are more than $11,000 ahead of the same period last year, it was learned Tuesday when official figures for February were made public by Postmaster E. K. Lorge.

February receipts were $335,843.58, a loss of a little over $8,000 as compared with the same month last year, but it was pointed out that February this year had one less working day and with daily receipts averaging in the neighborhood of $16,000, the figure in reality represented a decided gain. In no other "28-day month" have receipts ever before reached this figure, past records reveal.

The loss is still further accounted for by the fact that receipts for February of last year were the largest February receipts on record, the amount being $394,271.38. The former "28-day month" record was held by February, 1927, with $331,273.85.

Receipts for the first month of the year totalled $118,011.92, a record for the month of January and a gain of approximately $20,000 over the same month of the previous year.

The enormous growth of business at Atlanta office is indicated by past records which reveal that February receipts 10 years ago were only a little over half of the amount taken in last month, and going back to 1901, it is found that receipts for the whole year were less than those last month, the shortest in the year. In February, 1911, the first February on record here, the receipts were just over $90,000.

THE MEDBURY FORT MURDER

By GEORGE LIMNELLIUS

SYNOPSIS.
Major Hugh Preece, of the Royal Army Medical Corps, has just been transferred from Bath to Fort Medbury, which is his office for the day to take his wife and children out riding when Lieutenant Leaper is announced and he has to stay in the office. The lieutenant is suffering from a mild nasal disorder and the major proceeds for him. After the young officer leaves Major Preece remembers that he has seen him before and recalls the occasion. The first time the major in a reminiscent mood. He recalls his first love affair with Prunella Lake, an actress on the London stage.

INSTALLMENT III. A PARTING.

Preece remembered he had felt ridiculously embarrassed when he had turned round to find Prunella's mother with the diffident manner of one unaccustomed to social situations regarding him from a pair of shrewd light blue eyes. He had wondered, vaguely, if she was going to ask him "his intentions."

"Honourable but remote," he thought, with nervous flippancy, would be the correct reply. Perhaps she would demand whether he was in a position to support a wife. He could think of no better answer than that he would have no objection to his wife supporting him. He knew very well that Prunella would never marry him, for he saw, with distressing clarity, that Prunella's heart would never sway her head.

To his amazement as he listened to Prunella's mother he found that she was gently and tactfully telling him what he already knew; that her daughter would not marry a poor man.

Mrs. Lake in her quiet voice still, after forty-one years in a London suburb—with traces of a Dorset burr—plunged into biographical details. Prunella, it appeared, had always been a good girl, but it became increasingly apparent as her mother's recital continued she had never captured her mother's heart. By Prunella's only brother and elder by two years, had done that.

The little woman at last had broken off her monologue to ask anxiously: "You think I'm being unfair to my own daughter, Mr. Preece?"

Preece disclaimed the suggestion by a gesture which he felt lacked the robustness of complete conviction.

"She's been a good girl—not better. Never a moment fuss or worry with her, and she on the stage and all, if you follow me, but—"

Mrs. Lake paused, glanced round and, picking up a Nottingham lace antimacassar from the back of a plush armchair, made for the door. Speaking over her shoulder she said: "I don't want to hear any more of this."

Prunella, who had been sitting close to her mother, said: "I liked the look of you. You're not the sort of silly young 'masher' she generally has running after her. So you look out! She's a deep one, is Prunella—selfish, you know."

With a nod and a glance she had gone. Preece never remembered seeing her again. She was right, though. He had always known it. Mrs. Lake's confidence merely confirmed his own estimate of Prunella's character. He knew it still; and yet he reflected grimly, he supposed he loved her—had loved her, certainly. Still, never had he been able to define the peculiar attraction Prunella cast over him. He saw her steadily, dispassionately, knew her to be honest, selfless, a skilled exploiter of her own personality. With her he was completely at his ease; they fitted in together. They were made for each other, he told himself. He understood her and, comprehending all, loved her.

With a slightly sardonic smile Major Preece sighed, abruptly flicked some cigarette ash off his tunic. His thoughts returned to that last evening with Prunella before he had sailed for West Africa. He could think of a box at Covent Garden for the Russian ballet, whose exotic decor then was thrilling artistic London for the first time. The speed, precision and incredible gaiety of the performance excited Prunella's profound respect. During the Danse Macabre she pressed towards him, his own as the tempo of music closed in a crescendo of pagan violence.

The last scene, Schizandra, with its mixture of oriental passion and cruelty, its riot of color and haunting, insistent rhythms, seemed to have drained Prunella of her own abundant vitality. "Let's go home, Hugh," she whispered.

"You will never do anything rash, Prunella," he had returned solemnly. It was 2 in the morning before he took his leave. The poignancy of their actual parting stirred him faintly even now. She had clung to him at the last, desperately loth to let him go. In the end he had gently unlaced her arms from about his neck and carried her to the sofa, and then he had left her, her tearstained face turned to the ceiling, her eyes black with misery. They were both very young and when you are very young a year seems eternity. And rightly, for Preece reflected, time is most precious to the young—if they only knew it. Prunella knew it. With a rare instinct that now, in the first flush of young womanhood, were the golden moments, she savored each to the full. Preece recalled the miserable incidents of his departure the next day, or rather, the same day on which he had said farewell to Prunella. A raw, gray, October morning. A thin rain from low seething clouds drove relentlessly across the dull flat pinnacles of the Millands, "which are solid and unkind," as the train to Liverpool tore smoothly on its way.

pered when he would have urged her to have supper at the Savoy.

Passing in their swaying hansom through the dimly lit suburban streets, they had hardly spoken, nor did she lift her head from his shoulder when the cab stopped at the little darkened house in the drab street where she lived.

"We're here, darling," he whispered. She stirred softly in his arms, holding up her face, like a child, to be kissed.

Hugh had given the cabman a whacking tip for his tactfulness in not springing through the trap door in the roof of the hansom.

Inside Prunella had lit the inverted incandescent gas burner in the front parlor. She had thrown off her cloak and was curled up on an uninviting piece of furniture. The air in the room smelled stale and chilly.

"Give me a cigarette, Hugh," she had murmured. For a woman to smoke was still considered, in bourgeois circles, a little fast. Prunella had a natural flair for the aristocratic gesture.

Preece, throwing a cushion upon the floor, sat down, his head upon her lap. He felt a sudden wave of sick depression as he realized he would not see her again for over a year. He took her hand, pressing the soft palm over his mouth and nose in a vain attempt to fill his whole being with her fragrance, so that during his year of exile he would ever hold the faint perfume of her body in his nostrils.

"Prunella," his voice was stifled—"I simply can't leave you—like this."

"You mean?" she had exclaimed in a voice which had made him look closely at her. Her face and neck had crimsoned—"you mean . . . Hugh, you forget the mother's upstairs. Besides, I couldn't do that—ever—even for you."

For an amazed second Preece had stared into her eyes, then he laughed shortly. "Wouldn't you—ever?"

"Hugh—I—perhaps, when you come back."

His heart made a curious little jump—a last leap of freedom, he had supposed. She had misunderstood him.

"Promise to marry me," he murmured. It was just she had leaned forward to press the stub of her cigarette into an ash tray. There was a certain air of finality in the gesture which had sent a chill of fear through him, but her voice, when it came in reply, was liquid:

"Dear Hugh, we mustn't be rash. You will never do anything rash, Prunella," he had returned solemnly.

It was 2 in the morning before he took his leave. The poignancy of their actual parting stirred him faintly even now. She had clung to him at the last, desperately loth to let him go. In the end he had gently unlaced her arms from about his neck and carried her to the sofa, and then he had left her, her tearstained face turned to the ceiling, her eyes black with misery. They were both very young and when you are very young a year seems eternity. And rightly, for Preece reflected, time is most precious to the young—if they only knew it. Prunella knew it. With a rare instinct that now, in the first flush of young womanhood, were the golden moments, she savored each to the full. Preece recalled the miserable incidents of his departure the next day, or rather, the same day on which he had said farewell to Prunella. A raw, gray, October morning. A thin rain from low seething clouds drove relentlessly across the dull flat pinnacles of the Millands, "which are solid and unkind," as the train to Liverpool tore smoothly on its way.

"Hugh—I—perhaps, when you come back."

His heart made a curious little jump—a last leap of freedom, he had supposed. She had misunderstood him.

"Promise to marry me," he murmured. It was just she had leaned forward to press the stub of her cigarette into an ash tray. There was a certain air of finality in the gesture which had sent a chill of fear through him, but her voice, when it came in reply, was liquid:

"Dear Hugh, we mustn't be rash. You will never do anything rash, Prunella," he had returned solemnly.

It was 2 in the morning before he took his leave. The poignancy of their actual parting stirred him faintly even now. She had clung to him at the last, desperately loth to let him go. In the end he had gently unlaced her arms from about his neck and carried her to the sofa, and then he had left her, her tearstained face turned to the ceiling, her eyes black with misery. NEW YORK, MARCH 5.—(P)—Cotton showed increased activity and strength today. Buying was more general on reports of steady business in cotton goods and complaints that farm work was being delayed by unfavorable weather in the south. May contracts sold up to 21.12, or 46 points net higher, and into new high ground for the movement, and closed at 21.08. The general market closed strong at advances of 40 to 46 points.

The market opened firm at advances of 14 to 17 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables, favorable trade reports from Manchester and reports of further rains in the eastern belt. The advance attracted considerable southern selling and realizing, but offerings were absorbed on comparatively moderate reactions. Prices worked higher, except for occasional setbacks.

Apprehensions that floods might develop in the Mississippi valley seemed to stimulate the demand in the late trading when there was covering or rebuying by early sellers and further broadening of commission house demand. March contracts closed at 21.08, the new October contract at 20.23, making net advances of 43 to 51 points on the active positions. The close was within a few points of the best of the year.

A private report estimating the world's consumption of American lint cotton for the first half of this season at 7,616,000 bales was one of the factors on the earlier buying. The advance was attributed chiefly to bullish features in the old crop situation and fear of further delays in coming crop preparations.

Private cables reported London and foreign buying of new months in Liverpool and said there was fair cloth demand in Manchester, with improved trade reports from India.

Port receipts today 19,568. U. S. port stocks, 1,554,451. Exports today, 12,945, making 6,390,202 this season.

DAILY STOCK SUMMARY

New York, March 5.—(P)—High

call money rates and increasing revolutionary disturbances in Mexico proved too great an obstacle for speculators for the advance in today's stock market, and prices broke sharply after a midday flurry of buying had carried a score of the copper and rails into new high ground. Final quotations disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from 1 to 6 points in the active issues, and 7 to 10 points in the specialties. A sprinkling of advances was noted in the copper, rails and specialties retained part of their early gains.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent, advancing to 10 per cent. The 30-day banks called between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 in loans. Time money, commercial paper and bankers acceptances rates held firm around the year's high levels. With federal income tax payments and the quarterly treasury financing due next week and a steady spring expansion in commercial and agricultural borrowings, bankers saw little hope of any early relaxation in money rates.

Rails enjoyed a temporary flurry of steady advance trading as buying presumably influenced by the excellent character of current earnings and traffic reports, and possibly by expectations of an early favorable decision of the United States supreme court in the St. Louis and O'Fallon valuation case. Low peak prices for the year, or longer, were registered by
